U.S. Astronauts Poised for Four-Day Space Ride

Gemini Finale Termed Major Bridge to Moon

Weather Perfect For Doubleheader Launch Project

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The countdown for the finale in America's Gemini project, a major bridge to the moon, swept smoothly today toward the start of a four-day adventure that may determine man's physical limitations in space.

Lights burned green at Gemini 12 launch pad consoles and around the world as technicians, their skills honed sharp by nine straight successful manned launches, methodically checked out every system.

The 100-foot-tall Titan that will thrust a veteran astronaut and a space rookie into the sky was loaded with more than 200,000 pounds of fuel in fast time of three hours and 21 minutes.

The pilots, Navy Capt. James A. Lovell Jr. and Air Force Maj. Edwin E. Aldrin Jr., slept late after getting to bed at 2 a. m. They were adjusting to the swing shift work cycle their demanding flight plan requires.

The sun sparkled through cloudless blue skies at dawn. Forecasters said launch pad weather would be nearly perfect at 2:08 p. m. EST when the doubleheader launching was scheduled to start with the liftoff of an Agena target satellite.

Lovell and Aldrin were to ride into space at 3:46 p. m. atop a Titan 2 to start the five-mile-second pursuit of the Agena.

Troubles with an automatic pilot system in the Titan 2 forced the original Wednesday launch date to slip 48 hours.

The problems were cleared up Thursday and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration flashed the go-ahead for the mission to start today.

Favor Uniform Monday Holidays

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Chamber of Commerce said today a poll of its members shows overwhelmingly support for changing the dates of some holidays as they will occur regularly and uniformly on Mondays. Such changes would create more three-day weekends.

The chamber said 85 per cent of those responding to a questionnaire favored the general idea of observing Memorial Day, Thanksgiving, Independence Day, Veteran's Day and Washington's Birthday on Mondays.

The questionnaire did not discuss changing the observance of Christmas or New Year's Day. It was returned by 9,964 businessmen, or about one-third of the members polled.

Man Is Finally Released From 4-Month Nightmare

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Robert S. Burlingame was sunning himself on the Iowa State Capitol lawn last July 1 when a Federal Bureau of Investigation agent told him he was wanted for questioning in a bank robbery.

That was the start of a 132-day ordeal which ended Thursday when U.S. District Judge Roy Stephenson dismissed a bank robbery charge filed by the FBI against Burlingame.

U.S. District Atty. Donald M. Steton said the FBI finally had established that Burlingame was in Minneapolis on June 22, as he claimed, when the $1,500 holdup of the Iowa-Des Moines National Bank occurred. Burlingame was free on bond through-out the ordeal.

He said Burlingame was a victim of mistaken identity. The bank teller, Miss Jo Ann Barberio, 25, identified Burlingame at his preliminary hearing as the man who pulled the moon-hour robbery.

U.S. Plane Feared Lost in Atlantic

OTIS AIR FORCE BASE, Mass. (AP) — An Air Force Constellation with 19 men aboard is missing today and presumed to have crashed in the Atlantic some 125 miles east of Cape Cod.

The four engine EC121H, a radar patrol plane out of Otis, vanished from radar screens early this morning while on a routine air defense mission.

Officials said there was no indication the plane was in trouble when contact was lost. First word of a possible crash came by radio from a small fishing vessel.

A massive search was organized immediately after the fishing vessel reported seeing a plane hurtle through the fog into the rough seas.

Rescue planes from Labrador and Bermuda and other Atlantic bases swarmed over the area, seeking the lost craft. Coast Guard cutters, fishing vessels

Fire Razes Dormitory; 117 Freshmen Routed

JACKSON, Tenn. (AP) — Fire, which began in a Lane College dormitory attic while 117 freshmen were sleeping, destroyed the building before dawn today.

One student suffered a back injury when he jumped from the window of his second-floor room. Lt. Nelson Hodge, 65, a veteran member of the fire department, died of an apparent heart attack while fighting the blaze.

U.S. Forces At Tay Ninh Strengthened

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. commanders sent another brigade of 4,000 men to the Tay Ninh front today as the reported enemy toll in just over a week of fighting rose to 900 dead.

An estimated 25,000 or more Americans have been committed to the operation to root out the enemy from the Viet Cong stronghold 60 miles northwest of Saigon near the Cambodian border. An American military spokesman reported the operation, named Attleboro, is "the largest U.S. action" of the Viet Nam war.

U.S. ground forces reported killing 20 Viet Cong in new fighting and finding 15 more bodies of enemy killed in earlier fighting to bring the Communist toll to 900. U.S. casualties for the operation were still reported light over-all, although some units were hit hard in the early fighting.

B52 bombers supported the ground forces with attacks on Viet Cong base camps today for the second straight day. The bombers dropped their bombs 23 miles northeast of Tay Ninh City.

In the Mekong Delta, the Viet Cong launched a mortar, rocket and small arms attack on a dependents' camp of Vietnamese regional forces and killed or wounded 46 South Vietnamese. Most of them wives or children of militiamen stationed in the provincial capital of Chuong Thien, 102 miles southwest of Saigon.

On the political front, Premier Nguyen Cao Ky announced that two more cabinet ministers were leaving his government. This brought to four the numbers of ministers who have resigned in weeks of dissension between civilian cabinet ministers from South Viet Nam and the natives of North Viet Nam who dominate Ky's military junta.

The resignations raised no immediate threat to Ky's government. Ky and the other generals of the junta hold the power, and the civilians in the cabinet have a mostly advisory role.

Bad weather again curtailed the air war against North Viet Nam Thursday. U.S. pilots flew 83 bombing missions, about half the usual number on a good day. They concentrated on water traffic, storage and staging areas in the southern panhandle and the Hanoi and Haiphong areas.

Cong Reported Training Frogmen

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The Communist Viet Cong are reported training frogmen for attacks on U.S. ammunition ships and other vessels.

Officially, the Navy will say nothing about this development. But Navy sources in Saigon and elsewhere confirm that it is causing concern.

One Navy source reported that mines have been found tethered to anchor chains of American cargo vessels, indicating the explosives were hung there by frogmen.

Federal Judges To Get Georgia Vote Dispute

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Georgia's undecided gubernatorial election went today to three federal judges who were asked to bar the Legislature from choosing a chief executive.

The federal panel hearing was spawned from two suits growing out of the election Tuesday where neither Republican Howard H. Callaway nor Democrat Lester G. Maddox received a majority of votes.

Write-in votes for former Gov. Ellis G. Arnall kept both major candidates below the 50 per cent mark, which, under the Georgia constitution, forces the General Assembly to choose between the top two.

With all the state's 1,893 precincts reporting, the vote was: Maddox 445,359, or 47 per cent; Callaway 442,871, or 46.8 per cent, and Arnall 57,699 or 6 per cent.

Gas Threatens Town

HOMER, Mich. (AP)—A New York Central freight leaped the track in this southern Michigan town today, sending three tank cars filled with potentially deadly gas crashing into the base of some gasoline and fuel oil storage tanks.

One of the tanks burst, spewing flaming liquid as far as a block.

Heat from the fire that swirled around the tank cars and the elevated, 17,000 gallon storage tanks held firemen at bay.

There was no reports of any injuries, but sheriffs deputies said they detected an odor that was "extremely nauseating."

State police evacuated a three block area and nearly 1,000 of the town's 1,700 residents from their homes for safety beyond the town limits.

Police used bullhorns to warn away the curious and to evacuate homes.

Robert McCulloch, central trainmaster from Jackson, Mich., at first identified the gas as chlorine.

A spokesman for the New York Central however, said the tank cars carried vinyl and acetate Chloride which can, under heat, combine to produce phosgene.

"A Dictionary of Science," published by Penguin Books, says phosgene is a poisonous, colorless gas with a penetrating smell resembling musty hay that was widely used during World War I. It can produce nausea when inhaled and can be fatal in great quantity.

"It'll have to burn itself. The heat is too intense to send in any firefighting equipment," said the NYC spokesman. Central said chemical experts were flying in from Cleveland.

Residents of the community were just rising at 7 a.m. when homes were shaken by an explosion.

Congress Will Look Hard At Johnson's Legislation

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's announcement he will lay fewer "Great Society" proposals before a new Congress with swollen Republican ranks pointed today toward a resurvey of the nation's domestic course.

"I think it will be more difficult for any new legislation we might propose," Johnson told a news conference at his Texas ranch Thursday in assessing the GOP gains of 47 House members and three senators in Tuesday's balloting.

Asked if he would be sending Congress many new recommendations or would concession of programs he has been highly successful in wrangling from the 89th Congress, the President said he would have some new proposals but fewer of them than in 1966.

He added that his principal job will be to find ways of financing programs already authorized.

Among politicians, there was general agreement that the President was recognizing the realities of a situation in which the Republicans can combine with conservative Southern Democrats to balk almost any welfare legislation they oppose.

Senate democratic leader Mike Mansfield took note of this when he said the forthcoming session of Congress should be one for "tightening up" and reviewing the measures passed in the last two years.

"It should be a time to stop, look and listen," he told newsmen.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen said there will be an accent on fiscal solvency and a "surveillance of spending."

"A good hard look will be taken at the poverty program and any other program where there may be waste or inefficiency," he said.

Not all Republicans, of course, are advocates of the kind of domestic retrenchment Dirksen might like.

Newly elected Sens. Charles H. Percy of Illinois and Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon, Sen. Robert P. Griffin, who won an elective term in Michigan, and re-elected Sens. J. Caleb Boggs of Delaware, John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky and Clifford P. Case of New Jersey kept alive the

Top Moptops Say Quartet To Continue

LONDON (AP) — "I suppose we've got to go on being the four mop-tops," Beatle John Lennon told the Daily Mirror today.

"We've no intention of splitting up. We will go on recording songs."

Lennon was trying to dispel persistent rumors that the famous quartet is on the point of disbanding.

The singer, guitarist and lyric writer conceded that the rumors stemmed from the fact that all four Beatles have independent interests.

"We've had four years doing what everybody else wants us to do," said Beatle George Harrison. "Now we're doing what we really want to do."

Bliss Says Vote Is 'Sensational'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ray C. Bliss, Republican national chairman, who keeps quiet most of the time, was riding a crest of victory today, using words like "sweep" and "sensational."

And he exercised the winner's prerogative when he was asked whether his Republican National Committee was responsible for the comeback.

"I'll stand on the record," Bliss said in an interview.

Goodyear Blimp Suffers Damage

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. spokesmen say cause of the crash of the company's blimp and extent of the damage are under investigation.

After both engines failed Thursday night, the blimp landed on power lines in nearby Carlsbad, temporarily cutting off power in a one-mile square industrial area. There were no injuries.

The gondola remained intact, company spokesmen said, but the neoprene-impregnated dacron skin of the craft was ripped for several yards.

Brown Posts Recap of Ohio Voting

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Secretary of State Ted W. Brown has announced the complete unofficial recapitulation of votes cast for statewide offices in the Nov. 8 election.

Brown said the totals were based on mail reports from the state's 13,060 polling places. Results will not become official until completion of a complete canvass, expected around Dec. 1, Brown said.

There were some slight variations in the totals announced election night and early Wednesday on the basis of telephone reports.

The new totals are: Republican Gov. James A. Rhodes, 1,788,892; Democratic State Sen. Frazier Reams Jr., 1,089,261.

Republican Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe 1,516,919; U.S. Rep. Robert E. Sweeney 1,230,615.

Republican Auditor (full term) Roger Cloud, 1,521,461; Democrat Thomas E. Ferguson, 1,194,723.

Republican auditor (short term) Archer E. Reilly 1,428,343; Democrat Clarence H. Knisley, 1,170,216.

Republican Secretary of State Ted W. Brown 1,667,433; Democrat James D. Nolan 1,036,456.

Republican State Treasurer John D. Herbert 1,553,307; Democrat Eldon Brown, 1,092,327.

Supreme Court (full term commencing Jan. 1 1967) Republican Louis J. Schneider Jr., 1,314,209; Democrat Clifford F. Brown, 1,021,232.

Supreme Court (full term commencing Jan. 2, 1967) Republican Paul W. Brown, 1,577,847; Democrat Joseph D. Bryan, 731,034.

Tree-Planting Program Set in Southeast Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A new cooperative tree planting promotional program in southeastern Ohio was announced today by Fred E. Morr, director of the Department of Natural Resources.

He said the Ohio Division of Forestry and Reclamation and the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Co. are cooperating in establishing a seedling matching program for Monroe, Washington, Athens, Meigs, Gallia, Lawrence, Jackson, Vinton and Hocking counties.

The program enables landowners to plant pine seedlings on idle farmland, cutover woodland or existing forest property at small cost.

Once Around Roundtown

THE CIRCLEVILLE area received 1.31 inches of rain Thursday bringing total precipitation for November to 4.41 inches.

Normal accumulation for the entire month is 2.79 inches.

The Scioto River here had reached a reading of 10.90 feet early this morning, but was expected to recede late tonight.

THE VETERANS' DAY holiday was responsible for a minimum of activity in the downtown area today. Many offices were closed for the day and "Old Glory" was being displayed by many businesses and in residential areas.

HENRY T. McCrady, county engineer, claims he is beginning to understand women. The county engineer, recuperating from a heart attack of several weeks ago, says he has become addicted to some of the afternoon soap operas on TV. "If you watch them once or twice, you're hooked," he said.

The convalescent was in a hurry when he stopped in at The Herald offices today. He was on his way home to watch his programs.

Sub, Carrier Limp Home For Repairs

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The nuclear-powered submarine Nautilus and the aircraft carrier Essex, damaged in a collision off the North Carolina Coast, were homeward bound today for repairs.

The two Navy ships collided Thursday, some 360 miles east of Morehead City, N.C., as the Nautilus practiced an attack on the Essex.

The Navy said the Nautilus, the world's first nuclear submarine, received "extensive damage" to its sail (conning tower) and the Essex's damage was confined to her hull.

A Nautilus crewman knocked from his feet was the only person injured, the Navy said. He suffered a possible broken arm.

The Navy said the cause of the collision had not been determined.

Chaplain Dies in Line of Duty To Church and Country

DAU TIENG, South Viet Nam (AP) — "My place is with them," Chaplain Michael J. Queally replied when a 1st Division officer tried to dissuade him from boarding a helicopter to join American troops under heavy jungle attack. Hours later, he was killed by Viet Cong fire as he gave the last rites to a dying soldier.

Father Queally, a Roman Catholic from New York City, was the fifth U.S. chaplain to die in Viet Nam. He had volunteered for Army duty after three years at a church in a suburb of Mobile, Ala., and arrived in Viet Nam Jan. 25.

Father Queally was assigned to the 2nd Battalion of the 1st Division's 28th Regiment, but when word reached forward headquarters Tuesday morning that the regiment's 1st Battalion was heavily engaged in the battle in Tay Ninh Province, he decided to go to it.

He reached the battalion in War Zone C, northwest of Saigon. A Viet Cong attack before dawn had been repelled with the help of artillery but the enemy was regrouping.

Ignoring the battle, he gave the last rites to several dying U.S. soldiers.

The Viet Cong made another attack. A Communist soldier carrying a machine gun jumped from the bushes as Father Queally attended the last of the dying men and shot the chaplain in the head and stomach.

Father Queally died moments later, not knowing that the Viet Cong attack had failed.

The last entry in the diary he carried read: "So will my heavenly Father treat you unless each of you forgives his brother with all his heart."

U.S. Plane Feared Lost in Atlantic

OTIS AIR FORCE BASE, Mass. (AP) — An Air Force Constellation with 19 men aboard is missing today and presumed to have crashed in the Atlantic some 125 miles east of Cape Cod.

The four engine EC121H, a radar patrol plane out of Otis, vanished from radar screens early this morning while on a routine air defense mission.

Officials said there was no indication the plane was in trouble when contact was lost. First word of a possible crash came by radio from a small fishing vessel.

A massive search was organized immediately after the fishing vessel reported seeing a plane hurtle through the fog into the rough seas.

Rescue planes from Labrador and Bermuda and other Atlantic bases swarmed over the area, seeking the lost craft. Coast Guard cutters, fishing vessels

The searchers reported an oil slick and unidentified debris in the area where the plane was said to have crashed.

Identity of the 19 men aboard the Constellation was withheld by the Air Force pending notification of next of kin.

A Coast Guard spokesman at Boston said the plane left Otis at 12:34 a. m., and was last heard from by radio at 1:22 a. m.

Major goal is to learn if man can work effectively outside an orbiting ship in a pressurized suit. Space walkers experienced troubles moving about to the last three Gemini flights and raised a question whether astronauts will be able to perform complex tasks slated for later space flights.

Aldrin plans three excursions outside totaling nearly five hours. He is to take a two-hour space walk and conduct two "space stands" during which he is to poke his head through an open hatch.

During the walk he'll pace himself carefully, stopping to rest often and using aids such as handrails and foot restraints to help him move about.

These were highlights of the Gemini 12 flight plan:

Today: Gemini 12 catches and links up with Agena during the fourth orbit, about four hours after launching, practicing many maneuvers that Apollo astronauts must make on return trips from the moon. Lovell and Aldrin fire Agena engine to shoot to altitude of 480 miles.

Saturday: Aldrin opens his hatch about noon for 2-hour 20-minute session of photographing the stars and performing simple tasks.

Sunday: Stepping into space on a 25-foot lifeline, Aldrin first hooks up the still-joined Gemini and Agena with a 100-foot cord stowed on the Agena. He practices moving about with the handrails and performs tasks such as making electrical connections and loosening bolts at a "work bench." After the two-hour walk, Lovell separates from the Agena and pulls taut the 100-foot line between the two vehicles in a fuel-saving formation-flying test.

Monday: Aldrin opens his hatch for a 40-minute photography session. Rest of the day is devoted to experiments.

Tuesday: Lovell and Aldrin photograph a sodium vapor cloud spewed across the sky by a French rocket launch in Algeria. They fire retro-rockets over Pacific and land in the Atlantic about 700 miles southeast of Cape Kennedy after flight of 94 hours, 37 minutes.

The final Gemini flight will clear the way for the first earth-orbit flight of a three-man Apollo moonship. NASA had hoped to send the first crew in space in December for a trip of up to 14 days. But problems with the spacecraft delayed the maiden flight until early next year, with Jan. 17 the current planning date.

Georgia Governor Impasse Worsened by Court Opinion

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A three-judge federal court said today it takes the strong tentative view that the Georgia Legislature cannot choose a governor in the no-win race between Republican Howard Callaway and Democrat Lester G. Maddox.

But the court entered no order immediately.

"This court is of the very strong view at the moment that this provision of the Georgia Constitution cannot stand," Chief Judge Elbert P. Tuttle of the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals told a state attorney.

$30 Billion Antimissile Plan Studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara says the Soviet Union is developing an antimissile system and the United States is considering whether to set up one.

The cost of such a system designed to fend off long-range ballistic missiles would be enormous, ranging perhaps as high as $30 billion.

McNamara made his statement, believed to be his first public comment on the Soviet defense system, to newsmen Thursday at President Johnson's Texas ranch. He said he and the President had discussed the antimissile missile system and will have further talks about them.

The defense chief stressed there is "no question of our capability to penetrate Soviet defenses with missiles and aircraft" at this time.

He said the Soviet Union started laying out an antimissile missile (ABM) defense sometime ago and "we must assume" for planning purposes that it will be effective when it is fully activated.

The United States has such a system — known as Nike X — in the works but has withheld a decision to begin erecting the necessary interceptor missile sites, radar and associated command and control equipment.

The huge cost — ranging from $4 billion to as much as $30 billion, depending on its depth and sophistication — has been a factor in the delaying of any decision to establish an antimissile system.

And McNamara is known to have reservations about such system's effectiveness.

But his comment that the United States "must assume" the Soviet antimissile system will be effective indicated serious consideration is being given to proceeding with deployment of Nike X next year.

In the area of U.S. offensive systems, McNamara said he expects to send Congress a recommendation for outfitting the nation's Polar submarines with an improved atomic missile known as Poseidon.

McNamara said deployment of the Poseidons in place of present ICBMs aboard the nuclear subs would run into "several billions" of dollars.

Man Is Injured In Truck Crash

Robert L. Strawser, 27, Route 3, was admitted to Berger Hospital early today following an accident 15 miles northwest of Circleville on Route 56.

Strawser told officers he lost control of his pickup truck on a curve. The vehicle was demolished. The driver suffered possible internal injuries.

The accident is under investigation by Deputy George Lindner of the Pickaway County Sheriff's Department.

Entry Attempted

B. F. Hardy of 219 Harrison St., told the Circleville Police Department today that an attempt was made early today to enter the Circle Bar, 105 E. Ohio St.

Seven men were seen in the parking lot of the Circle Bar, Hardy said.

Sam's Brother Takes Stand

Tells of Finding Doctor on Floor

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Dr. Stephen A. Sheppard testified today at his brother's murder trial that J. Spencer Houk asked him to persuade Samuel H. Sheppard to plead guilty to manslaughter in the July 4, 1954, bludgeoning of Marilyn Sheppard.

The white-haired Dr. Sheppard, 46, was asked by F. Lee Bailey chief defense counsel, about his talks with Houk shortly after the slaying.

"Mr. Houk said I should do everything in my power to get Sam to plead guilty to manslaughter and all of his friends would help him in every way possible," Dr. Stephen testified.

The older brother said he took a snub-nosed revolver with him when he went to Samuel's house the morning of the murder, but didn't take his medical kit because "nobody asked me to get there as a physician."

Sam was on the floor of the den, holding his neck when Stephen entered, the witness said.

"I thought he was dead. I touched him ... He was cold. The right side of his face was swollen and there was blood on his mouth."

The defendant had a "chip fracture of the second cervical vertebra," according to an x-ray later in the day at Bay View Hospital, Dr. Stephen said. He said police made no objection to his removing his brother to the hospital "10 or 15 minutes after I got here."

"But x-rays on the 6th didn't confirm it (the chipped vertebra) did they?" assistant prosecutor Leo M. Spellacy asked.

"No," Stephen answered. In opening the defense Thursday, Bailey put Paul Leland Kirk, University of California criminologist, on the stand as his No. 1 witness for the retrial, which the former osteopath won through appeal to federal court.

Kirk testified that: Marilyn Sheppard's slayer was left-handed and swung the murder weapon in an arc "something like a baseball swing."

The blood in her bedroom where she was beaten to death belonged to her and someone other than her husband.

Blood on Sheppard's trouser knee got there after his pants became water-soaked.

Kirk said he was brought to Cleveland Jan. 22, 1955, by Sheppard's original defense counsel for a study aimed at gaining a new trial. That appeal failed. Kirk said he typed Sheppard's blood, examined the murder scene, drew sketches, made photographs and inspected state's exhibits. Kirk, who did not attend the first trial, told the court he has worked in more than 2,000 criminal and civil cases throughout the world.

Miss Mary Cowan, chief laboratory technician in the coroner's office, testified that from a study of Sheppard's trousers she concluded the blood was on the pants before they became wet.

Draft Official Is Opposed To Use of Lottery System

WASHINGTON (AP) — Col. Daniel O. Omer, deputy director of Selective Service, reiterated today the agency's opposition to a draft lottery—as system Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara says would help eliminate deficiencies in the present procedure.

Omer, in an address prepared for a national conference on the draft, said Congress intended that the selection of draftees be made by judgment rather than lot.

Only Thursday, McNamara was quoted in an interview published in the Harvard Crimson as calling current draft methods unsuitable.

"We draft the oldest first," McNamara said. "It's never clear exactly at what age one will be subject to the draft. This makes very difficult the planning of one's life."

Saying every 19-year-old should be subjected to a draft lottery, McNamara proposed that in case of deferment, the name of the registrant would go back in the pool upon expiration of the deferred period.

Taking part in the opening session of a conference called by the American Veterans Committee, Omer said the idea of the lottery is to cure the inequity of deferment.

"If we exercise our judgment to defer a part of the group, and subject to a lottery only those who are left, we cannot even contend that we are equally fair to all, and we have destroyed the purpose of the lottery, which is to place upon everyone equal liability and availability for military service, with selection left to the chance of the draw," Omer said.

Discussing the system's philosophy, Omer said: "The burden of proof is always on the registrant who believes he should be deferred or exempted from military service."

Turning to the student deferment policy, Omer said: "We believe that, generally speaking, the national interest would be better served if men who are going to college could complete their education before being considered for military service."

OSBA Approves Centers For Regional Education

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The 3,000 delegates to the Ohio School Boards Association convention today urged replacement of some county school units with new "regional education centers."

As the three-day convention went into its final session, delegates approved a resolution which said regional centers would better serve modern conditions in many areas.

Where needed, the resolution recommended, the county units should be replaced with "a service center unit covering a larger territory."

Among other resolutions approved were some calling for more aid to high school vocational education programs and another asking state assurance of uniform property tax assessments in all counties.

In business Thursday, Lewis B. Moore of Urbana was elected from first vice president to president. He is president of the Urbana City School Board.

John S. Patterson of the Morgan County Board of Education was elected to succeed Moore as first vice president. Rbert Bowman of Swanton, Fulton County, was elected second vice president.

School Issues Support More Urban than Rural

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — City voters proved more willing to pass school financial issues in Tuesday's election than rural residents an Ohio Education Association survey of statewide results shows.

The OEA compilation, showing 432 of 563 proposals approved, or 77 per cent, indicated higher percentages of passage for both bond issues and tax levies in cities than in local districts.

A total of 55 out of 94 bond issue requests for school construction purposes passed (58.5 per cent). But the figure for rural districts was only 20 of 48, compared with 30 of 36 for cities and exempted villages.

Voters approved 377 for 465 tax levies over-all, an 81 per cent rate, but only 66 per cent (151 of 228) on proposals calling for increased millage. The only city failure among existing tax levies was in Cincinnati, where a 13.3-mill package which included 8.5 mills renewal was beaten.

Otherwise, school tax levies fared well in urban areas, where a relatively large proportion of voters don't own property—so the tax doesn't fall directly upon them.

Cleveland's $66 million bond issue, passed by more than a 2-1 majority, accounted for well over 40 per cent of the statewide total of $152 million approved in bond issues for school construction. Bond-financed projects which would have cost another $40 million were defeated around the state.

Major bond issues approved besides Cleveland's included Lakewood $10.9 million, Elyria $7.2 million, Mount Vernon $4.4 million, Cuyahoga Falls $3.8 million, Coshocton $3.5 million and Lima $3 million.

The largest operating levy passed was Mansfield's 21.3-mill renewal. Another big one, for 20.7 mills at Hillsdale in 1990 vote.

The 77 per cent over-all figure on passage of school financial issues, the OEA said, compared with 68 per cent at the 1965 November election but showed belt-tightening from the 1960, 1962 and 1964 general elections. In those, the approval rate was 93, 85 and 81 per cent, respectively.

Nixon Fears Concessions Unless War Ends in 1967

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon warned today that both Republicans and Democrats might make unwise concessions to the Vietnamese Communists for a politically popular peace during the 1968 presidential campaign unless President Johnson ends the war next year.

Exhilarated by Republican victories in Tuesday's election, Nixon surveyed the situation in Southeast Asia before flying off to a fishing vacation in Florida.

Nixon said in an exclusive interview that Republican victories in the House of Representatives provide a "bulwark of support for a policy of no reward for aggression in Asia and Lyndon Johnson should move to end this war without appeasement in 1967."

With the '68 election out of the way, Nixon said: "I am convinced that this war must be ended without appeasement in 1967—because if it is not, both parties will be sorely tempted to propose concessions for peace in the 1968 election that may be politically popular, but which will, in effect, jeopardize the American commitment in Asia, and jeopardize not only our national interests but the interests of all free Asia."

"With his hand strengthened in the House," Nixon said "now is the time for the President to stop making incessant peace offers which only convince the enemy that he will pay an even higher price for peace."

To begin with, he said, Johnson should make it absolutely plain that the United States will not agree to a coalition government in Viet Nam that would include Communists.

Then, he added, the time has come for "the President to bring to bear upon the enemy the military and economic pressure that will convince him that aggression has no chance of success and that its continuance will be more and more costly for the aggressor."

Although Nixon, particularly because of his key role in this year's campaign, looks like a contender for the 1968 Republican presidential nomination, the word among his friends is that what he'd really like to be is U.S. senator.

Nixon believes that Congress does not take a big enough part in foreign policy decisions and he'd like to be in the Senate to speak out on such issues.

Georgia Governor Impasse Worsened by Court Opinion

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A three-judge federal court said today it takes the strong tentative view that the Georgia Legislature cannot choose a governor in the no-win race between Republican Howard Callaway and Democrat Lester G. Maddox.

But the court entered no order immediately.

"This court is of the very strong view at the moment that this provision of the Georgia Constitution cannot stand," Chief Judge Elbert P. Tuttle of the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals told a state attorney.

$30 Billion Antimissile Plan Studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara says the Soviet Union is deploying an antimissile system and the United States is considering whether to set up one.

The cost of such a system designed to fend off long-range ballistic missiles would be enormous, ranging perhaps as high as $30 billion.

McNamara made his statement, believed to be his first public comment on the Soviet defense system, to newsmen Thursday at President Johnson's Texas ranch. He said he and the President had discussed the antimissile missile system and will have further talks about them.

The defense chief stressed there is "no question of our capability to penetrate Soviet defenses with missiles and aircraft" at this time.

He said the Soviet Union started laying out an antimissile missile (ABM) defense sometime ago and "we must assume" for planning purposes that it will be effective when it is fully activated.

The United States has such a system — known as Nike X — in the works but has withheld a decision to begin erecting the necessary interceptor missile sites, radar and associated command and control equipment.

The huge cost — ranging from $4 billion to as much as $30 billion, depending on its depth and sophistication — has been a factor in the delaying of any decision to establish an antimissile system.

And McNamara is known to have reservations about such system's effectiveness.

But his comment that the United States "must assume" the Soviet antimissile system will be effective indicated serious consideration is being given to proceeding with deployment of Nike X next year.

In the area of U.S. offensive systems, McNamara said he expects to send Congress a recommendation for outfitting the nation's Polar submarines with an improved atomic missile known as Poseidon.

McNamara said deployment of the Poseidons in place of present ICBMs aboard the nuclear subs would run into "several billions" of dollars.

Man Is Injured In Truck Crash

Robert L. Strawser, 27, Route 3, was admitted to Berger Hospital early today following an accident 15 miles northwest of Circleville on Route 56.

Strawser told officers he lost control of his pickup truck on a curve. The vehicle was demolished. The driver suffered possible internal injuries.

The accident is under investigation by Deputy George Lindner of the Pickaway County Sheriff's Department.

Entry Attempted

B. F. Hardy of 219 Harrison St., told the Circleville Police Department today that an attempt was made early today to enter the Circle Bar, 105 E. Ohio St.

Tuttle expressed the tentative view of the panel at a hearing on complaints seeking to prevent the legislature from deciding the election which produced no majority because of write-in votes for former Gov. Ellis Arnall.

Tuttle in effect gave Georgia Atty. Gen. Arthur K. Bolton an opportunity to devise a method of deciding the election probably by a run-off election between Maddox and Callaway.

"You can reconsider and map your conduct accordingly," Tuttle said.

He said he spoke for the other two judges, Griffin B. Bell of the 5th Circuit and Dist. Judge Lewis R. Morgan.

The judges, in comments during the hearing, said the Georgia Constitution's provision allowing the General Assembly to choose a governor when no candidate received a majority, conflicts with the U.S. Supreme Court's ruling that votes cannot be diluted or weighted in a popular election system.

As the hearing began, late reporting absentee ballots from neighboring De Kalb County moved Callaway back into a slim 790-vote lead over Maddox, whose lead had been dwindling as late returns trickled in Thursday. The latest tabulation, with all 1,893 of the state's regular precincts and many of the absentee ballots reporting, gives Maddox 446,252, Callaway 447,042 and Arnall 57,899.

liberal minority within the GOP Senate ranks.

In the House, there appeared to be a generous sprinkling of moderate Republicans among the newly elected who would resist any efforts by the party's old guard to try to cancel the social advances made under the Democrats.

Johnson said he expects no change "in our course of action on security matters." He said he had good cooperation from the Republicans on legislation affecting the Viet Nam war and national defense generally. He indicated he expects this to continue.

While the majority of GOP members has gone along with Johnson's conduct of the war, Dirksen and House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan have made it clear they will try to pressure the President into more intensive military efforts aimed at ending the conflict.

In the 90th Congress, Democrats will hold a 248-187 edge in the House and a 64-38 margin in the Senate. Johnson said there was no doubt that the Republican party had been strengthened, adding:

"We're all glad to see a healthy and competent existence of the two party system."

Mansfield Calls For U.N. Confab On Viet Problem

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield says the United Nations Security Council should convene all countries interested in Viet Nam in order to "measure rather than guess the gap" which separates them.

The Montana senator said in a speech Thursday at Johns Hopkins University that maybe some countries wouldn't show up and that he didn't expect miracles.

But he added, "the least that should be expected, or accepted it seems to me, is a willingness on the part of the council to confront the issue of Viet Nam and to confront it soon."

Sam's Brother Takes Stand

Tells of Finding Doctor on Floor

CLEVELAND Ohio (AP) — Dr. Stephen A. Sheppard testified today at his brother's murder trial that J. Spencer Houk asked him to persuade Samuel H. Sheppard to plead guilty to manslaughter in the July 4, 1954, budgeon slaying of Marilyn Sheppard.

The white-haired Dr. Sheppard, 46, was asked by F. Lee Bailey chief defense counsel, about his talks with Houk shortly after the slaying.

"Mr. Houk said I should do everything in my power to get Sam to plead guilty to manslaughter and all of his friends would help him in every way possible," Dr. Stephen testified.

The older brother said he took a snub-nosed revolver with him when he went to Samuel's house the morning of the murder, but didn't take his medical kit because "nobody asked me to get there as a physician."

Sam was on the floor of the den, holding his neck when Stephen entered, the witness said. "I thought he was dead. I touched him ... He was cold. The right side of his face was swollen and there was blood on his mouth."

The defendant had a "chip fracture of the second cervical vertebra," according to an x-ray later in the day at Bay View Hospital, Dr. Stephen said. He said police made no objection to his removing his brother to the hospital "10 or 15 minutes after I got here."

"But x-rays on the 6th didn't confirm it (the chipped vertebra) did they?" assistant prosecutor Leo M. Spellacy asked.

"No," Stephen answered.

In opening the defense Thursday, Bailey put Paul Leland Kirk, University of California criminologist, on the stand as his No. 1 witness for the retrial, which the former osteopath won through appeal to federal court.

Kirk testified that: Marilyn Sheppard's slayer was left-handed and swung the murder weapon in an arc "something like a baseball swing."

The blood in her bedroom where she was beaten to death belonged to her and someone other than her husband.

Blood on Sheppard's trouser knee got there after his pants became water-soaked.

Kirk said he was brought to Cleveland Jan. 22, 1955, by Sheppard's original defense counsel for a study aimed at gaining a new trial. That appeal failed. Kirk said he typed Sheppard's blood, examined the murder scene, drew sketches, made photographs and inspected state's exhibits. Kirk, who did not attend the first trial, told the court he has worked in more than 2,000 criminal and civil cases throughout the world.

Miss Mary Cowan, chief laboratory technician in the coroner's office, testified that from a study of Sheppard's trousers she concluded the blood was on the pants before they became wet.

Early Stock Prices Mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed in active trading at the opening today.

Opening blocks included Jersey Standard, up 1/4 at 69 1/2; 5,900 shares; Douglas Aircraft, up 1/4 at 42 1/2 on 11,000 shares; American Telephone, unchanged at 56 on 4,000 shares, and Ford Motor, off 1/4 at 41 1/2 on 4,500 shares.

U.S. Steel dipped 1/4 to 37 1/2 on a block of 3,500 shares.

Draft Official Is Opposed To Use of Lottery System

WASHINGTON (AP) — Col. Daniel O. Omer, deputy director of Selective Service, reiterated today the agency's opposition to a draft lottery—as system Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara says would help eliminate deficiencies in the present procedure.

Omer, in an address prepared for a national conference on the draft, said Congress intended that the selection of draftees be made by judgment rather than lot.

Only Thursday, McNamara was quoted in an interview published in the Harvard Crimson as calling current draft methods unsuitable.

"We draft the oldest first," McNamara said. "It's never clear exactly at what age one will be subject to the draft. This makes very difficult the planning of one's life."

Saving every 19-year-old should be subjected to a draft lottery, McNamara proposed that in case of deferment, the name of the registrant would go back in the pool upon expiration of the deferred period.

Taking part in the opening session of a conference called by the American Veterans Committee, Omer said the idea of the lottery is to cure the inequity of deferment.

"If we exercise our judgment to defer a part of the group, and subject to a lottery only those who are left, we cannot even contend that we are equally fair to all, and we have destroyed the purpose of the lottery, which is to place upon everyone equal liability and availability for military service, with selection left to the chance of the draw," Omer said.

Discussing the system's philosophy, Omer said: "The burden of proof is always on the registrant who believes he should be deferred or exempted from military service."

Turning to the student deferment policy, Omer said: "We believe that, generally speaking, the national interest would be better served if men who are going to college could complete their education before being considered for military service."

OSBA Approves Centers For Regional Education

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The 3,000 delegates to the Ohio school Boards Association convention today urged replacement of some county school units with new "regional education centers."

As the three-day convention went into its final session, delegates approved a resolution which said regional centers would better serve modern conditions in many areas.

Where needed, the resolution recommended, the county units should be replaced with "a service center unit covering a larger territory."

Among other resolutions approved were some calling for more aid to high school vocational education programs and disturbed children and another asking state assurance of uniform property tax assessments in all counties.

In business Thursday, Lewis B. Moore of Urbana was elevated from first vice president to president. He is president of the Urbana City School Board.

John S. Patterson of the Morgan County Board of Education was elected to succeed Moore as first vice president. Rbert Bowman of Swanton, Fulton County, was elected second vice president.

Board Will Hire Lunch Monitors

The Logan Elm Board of Education has adopted a resolution to employ non-teaching personnel to supervise grade school children during lunch periods.

The board initiated the move in order to allow teachers an uninterrupted 30-minute lunch period as required by law.

John Henn, executive head, said principals of the three elementary schools had been authorized to contact parent-teacher organizations to see if members would be interested in the newly created position.

Although none of the Pickaway County Schools use non-teaching personnel for such duties, Henn noted that some Ross County schools have launched similar programs.

IN OTHER action taken, it was tentatively agreed that a principal be hired for the 1967-68 school year.

Henn had asked the board for an assistant principal for the remainder of the current year, citing the increased work load caused by normal growth of the work created by various federal programs. No immediate action was taken on the request.

A special board meeting has been scheduled Nov. 14. Members will meet with a teacher committee to discuss salary schedules.

The Logan Elm board has authorized a pay increase for substitute teachers from $15 to $17 per day.

The board granted permission to Goble Branham to attend the Ohio School Boards Assn. session on federal programs, to John Henn to attend the OSBA annual convention and to Robert Petty to attend the Ohio Musical Education Assn. convention in January.

The board authorized advance draws of $16,000 from the bond retirement fund to meet the Dec. 1 payment and $20,000 from the general fund for payroll and expenses. Reports on federal programs were heard.

A SURVEY will again be conducted to determine the number of eligible students in Logan Elm under public Law 874 to determine the amount of federal assistance available to the school.

The school's remedial reading program has been approved again. A grant of $13,000 in federal funds has been received to implement the project.

Employed as remedial reading teachers were Virgie Cox, Saltcreek; Mildred Maxwell, Pickaway; and Harriet Morris, Washington. There is a need for additional teachers in the program.

Transparencies ordered for elementary schools last year are now arriving. The Head Start Program will be established on the same basis as last summer, the board was told.

Violence Marks Coshocton Strike

COSHOCKTON, Ohio (AP) — Police reports of rifle fire and rock throwing marked the month-old contract dispute between United Steel Workers and the James B. Clow & Son Co. Thursday.

Robert Clark, president of striking Local 7104, told police he was at a union meeting when a rifle was fired into the bedroom where his two daughters, aged 7 and 8, were sleeping Wednesday night. Police said the bullet lodged in a wall and the two girls escaped injury.

Police said pickets placed logs at the entrance of the steel pipe plant and threw rocks at two foremen trying to pass in front of the gate. Officers said no injuries resulted, but one foreman reported all the windows in his pickup truck were broken.

OSU Approves Transportation Research Center

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Board of Trustees of Ohio State University gave formal authorization today for establishment of a transportation research center within the university's engineering experiment station.

The trustees also endorsed plans for future development of the center, being pushed by Gov. James A. Rhodes, and to be constructed on a 5,000-acre site in parts of Union and Logan Counties.

Dr. Gordon B. Carson, vice president for business and finance, was authorized to proceed with negotiations to acquire all the land needed. Purchase will be made with $1 million in university funds released by the State Controlling Board last July, and $1 million in state highway funds.

Primary functions of the center, as reported by the board, will be conducted non basic and applied research on the individual elements of the highway transportation system, including the driver, vehicle and car.

Candidate for Adenauer's Position Ex-Nazi, but Seen as 'Competent'

By CARL HARTMAN

BONN, Germany (AP) — The man his party wants to succeed Chancellor Ludwig Erhard is a highly successful local politician with a knowledge of foreign affairs that goes back to service under Joachim von Ribbentrop, Adolf Hitler's foreign minister.

Kurt Georg Kiesinger, 62, has for the last eight years run the populous and important state of Baden-Wuerttemberg as minister-president. The job is somewhat like that of a governor in the United States.

Baden-Wuerttemberg is in the extreme southwest corner of Germany and has a long border with France. Friends say that as a boy Kiesinger used to look across the Rhine River to the Vosges mountains and wonder why there had to be a frontier between the two countries. Now he is known as an advocate of closer relations between Germany and President Charles de Gaulle's France.

Kiesinger has come under some criticism — much more abroad than at home — because of his Nazi background. This may do him some harm as he tries to put together a parliamentary majority, just at a time when many people are worried about the upsurge of a new far right party, the National Democrats.

In 1940, he says he was drafted into service at Ribbentrop's Foreign Ministry. In a statement issued Wednesday he denied he was a contact man between Ribbentrop and Propaganda Minister Josef Goebbels, or that he was in contact with Hitler and other high Nazis.

After the war Kiesinger went into politics in the Christian Democratic party, and rose to be chairman of the Bundestag Foreign Affairs Committee. Ex-chancellor Konrad Adenauer once considered him for the job of foreign minister.

In 1958 he quit Bonn and went back to Baden-Wuerttemberg, taking over the minister-president post in Stuttgart, the state capital. He has been an outstanding political success there.

OSU Approves Transportation Research Center

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Board of Trustees of Ohio State University gave formal authorization today for establishment of a transportation research center within the university's engineering experiment station.

The trustees also endorsed plans for future development of the center, being pushed by Gov. James A. Rhodes, and to be constructed on a 5,000-acre site in parts of Union and Logan Counties.

Dr. Gordon B. Carson, vice president for business and finance, was authorized to proceed with negotiations to acquire all the land needed. Purchase will be made with $1 million in university funds released by the State Controlling Board last July, and $1 million in state highway funds.

Primary functions of the center, as reported by the board, will be conducted non basic and applied research on the individual elements of the highway transportation system, including the driver, vehicle and car.

Candidate for Adenauer's Position Ex-Nazi, but Seen as 'Competent'

By CARL HARTMAN

BONN, Germany (AP) — The man his party wants to succeed Chancellor Ludwig Erhard is a highly successful local politician with a knowledge of foreign affairs that goes back to service under Joachim von Ribbentrop, Adolf Hitler's foreign minister.

Kurt Georg Kiesinger, 62, has for the last eight years run the populous and important state of Baden-Wuerttemberg as minister-president. The job is somewhat like that of a governor in the United States.

Baden-Wuerttemberg is in the extreme southwest corner of Germany and has a long border with France. Friends say that as a boy Kiesinger used to look across the Rhine River to the Vosges mountains and wonder why there had to be a frontier between the two countries. Now he is known as an advocate of closer relations between Germany and President Charles de Gaulle's France.

Kiesinger has come under some criticism — much more abroad than at home — because of his Nazi background. This may do him some harm as he tries to put together a parliamentary majority, just at a time when many people are worried about the upsurge of a new far right party, the National Democrats.

Kiesinger joined the Nazi party

OK, Chief, You Asked for 'Em

WASHINGTON COURT HOUSE, Ohio (AP) — They may be perfect fingerprints, but Police Chief Rodman Scott would be happier without them.

A man being booked to serve 40 days for disorderly conduct and contempt of court unexpectedly remarked, "If the chief wants my fingerprints, he can have them."

With that, he neatly pressed his inked fingers onto Scott's new white hat, lying on a nearby counter.

ty as a young lawyer in 1933, the year Hitler came to power, but says he grew disillusioned when the dictator had many of his closest followers murdered. He did not quit the party. But friends say that at one point he was so disgusted he wanted to emigrate, perhaps to America.

In 1940, he says he was drafted into service at Ribbentrop's Foreign Ministry. In a statement issued Wednesday he denied he was a contact man between Ribbentrop and Propaganda Minister Josef Goebbels, or that he was in contact with Hitler and other high Nazis.

After the war Kiesinger went into politics in the Christian Democratic party, and rose to be chairman of the Bundestag Foreign Affairs Committee. Ex-chancellor Konrad Adenauer once considered him for the job of foreign minister.

In 1958 he quit Bonn and went back to Baden-Wuerttemberg, taking over the minister-president post in Stuttgart, the state capital. He has been an outstanding political success there.

Gasoline Taxes Are Distributed

Municipalities in Pickaway County received $11,929 in the November distribution of gasoline taxes, according to Roger Cloud, state auditor.

In addition, Pickaway County received $20,000 and each township $800.

Front-Line Fervor

There's nothing like a visit to the front lines to fire up an American President. Thus, speaking in Anchorage, Alaska, after his fraternal visit with the GIs at Cam Ranh Bay in South Vietnam, Lyndon Johnson said we were going to fight in Southeast Asia until the Communists were thrown back as they had been previously repelled in Korea and Malaysia. And, just to register his emotional commitment in true Texas fashion, LBJ added: "You can put that in your pipe and smoke it."

People with long memories will recall similar fervent statements by another U. S. President. Standing in West Berlin before 150,000 people in 1963 and confronting the obscenity of the Berlin Wall, John F. Kennedy proclaimed a passionate identity with his German hosts by saying that the proudest boast of a free man was to say, "Ich bin ein Berliner." And, addressing a throng of Cuban refugees in Miami's Orange Bowl in 1962, Kennedy put a comparable passion into a promise that Fidel Castro's victims would some day be restored along with their flag to Havana.

Back in Washington, however, a President may find it difficult to sustain the glorious feeling of front-line commitment. No doubt JFK's promise to the Cubans was sincerely meant but to this day the anti-Castro refugees find it impossible to square the Kennedy words with the policy of a State Department that actively interferes with any attempt to bring succor from U. S. sources to the guerrilla movement in Cuba. We have even descended pitifully to stopping anti-Castro boats in international waters on the high seas.

"Guerra, guerra, liberated," so the Cubans yelled as they listened to Kennedy in Florida. But there hasn't been much "guerra, guerra" for us, or "liberated" for the Cubans, since that memorable day in the Orange Bowl in 1962. Little Costa Rica, whose legislature has recently called on opponents of Castro to get cracking with their anti-Communist rebellion even when it involves gun-running from neutral shores, has exhibited more spine in following up John Kennedy's words than the U.S.

Insofar as the Southeast Asian war is concerned, this columnist can't understand a policy that is anti-Communist in Vietnam to the point of "putting it in your pipe and smoking it," yet exhibits a singular complacency when it comes to dealing with Moscow's support of the Vietcong.

After all, the anti-aircraft missiles and the Migs that make every U. S. bombing expedition over North Vietnam a hazard come from Soviet or East European factories. And the North Vietnamese, who fire the missiles and fly the Migs, owe what fighting competence they have to Muscovite training. Yet LBJ insists on the policy of "bridge building" to the very cities in the Soviet Empire that are arming the Vietcong thousands of miles away.

Our schizophrenic policy has the members of the Captive Nations committees in the U. S. going almost crazy in their attempts to understand what our State Department is up to. They suspect a widespread "conspiracy of silence." The various Hungarian committees who tried to get high-level speakers to address their rallies during the week of the Tenth Anniversary of the unsuccessful 1956 Revolution got a whole string of refusals.

Last summer, when Dr. Bela Fabian of the New York Hungarian Freedom Fighters held press conferences in the capitals of Europe, he got extensive local coverage for his charges that 63,000 Hungarian revolutionists who had been seized by the Russians in 1956 were still working as slave laborers in Siberia. But Dr. Fabian's attempt to stimulate pressure on Moscow from the U. S. to release the 63,000 prisoners (in line with certain amnesties that have been granted to Hungarians in Budapest itself) has met with no success. Pope Paul VI, who just the other day expressed his vital concern for the 63,000 Hungarian prisoners to Italian reporters, has done more for effective bridge building, which implies concessions at both ends of the bridges, than Washington, D.C., has managed to do in a month of supine Sundays.

LBJ should put that in his pipe and smoke it.

Psychology in One Lesson

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions: College professors may be tyrants in the classroom but they are usually more henpecked at home than other husbands. The least henpecked males are plumbers, house painters, and hair dressers — probably because they deal with women all the time and have few illusions about them.

Nothing is duller than a sexy book written by a hack writer in the obvious hopes of making a million dollars from it.

A woman who overprides herself on her housekeeping is a museum curator at heart. A house that is eternally neat has an embalmed quality, and is about as unsexily restful as the viewing room in a funeral home. Life has to have some disorder to be interesting.

The surest way to wreck an enemy, if he is a poor man, is to give him three expensive gifts he can't afford — such as a $750 watch, a $1,500 color television and hi-fi set, and a Rolls-Royce. He will die rather than give them up and work himself to death trying to meet the upkeep and repair bills.

Guys who wear colorful bird feathers at the side of their hats are usually lousy lovers — and also chronically overdue in their payments to the finance company.

More and more newspaper readers now read from the back page to the front — so they can read the bad news last.

One of the big differences between men and women is that men have less fear of looking awkward. A right-handed man will try to pour water from a heavy pitcher held in his left hand, if the pitcher happens to be at his left: a woman rarely, if ever, attempts this.

Stenographers say that at least one middle-aged guy in every business office is now secretly tinting his hair to make him look younger. If you want to know, which guys in your office are doing it, ask any of the girls. They all know.

A majority of Bowerly bums are victims of "momism." They may have deserted wife and children without a pang, but if you ask them about their dear old mothers they break into sentimental tears.

It's a smart secretary today who drinks one less martini for lunch than her boss does.

The biggest thing to feel grateful about on Thanksgiving Day nowadays is that it still leaves a fellow nearly a month to look for a place to park his car while he does his Christmas shopping.

A CONSTANT imbibor found his way home on a very dark night—after a very long and liquid party. "It's a wonder you didn't get lost," sneered his wife when he stumbled into the bedroom.

"How could I?" asked the imbibor. "Good old Erskine gave me this lantern to light the way for me." "That lantern," his wife informed him, "is a cage and the object inside it is one frightened canary. Now get to bed, you good-for-nothing sot!"

Grant Sawyer, Nevada's spy and youthful governor, is carrying with him these days two letters from youthful constituents. One reads, "I saw you on TV last night for the first time—on my ninth birthday. My dad told me not to worry—that you're a lot smarter than you look." The second letter: "I want you to know I'm going to be governor of Nevada, some day soon—but my father says I must finish my eighth-grade education to be as smart as you."

If it's any consolation to Governor Sawyer, my wife once mistook him for Cary Grant.

ly divided breathing tests.

Q: Is emphysema curable?

A: When once the changes in the lung have been definitely established the air spaces rarely return to normal. It is for this reason that physicians and educational campaigns direct their advice to the prevention of this disease.

The early recognition and treatment of this disorder may keep it in control but cannot cure it. Treatment is concentrated on the relief of symptoms and the effort to retard the progress of this chronic disease.

Q: What are the methods of treatment?

A: First and foremost is the absolute need to stop smoking. Patients must be removed from areas of high pollution and smog concentrate.

Special breathing postural exercises, and an abdominal belt can bring some breathing comfort. The antibiotics are used with or without cortisone to combat infections and to prevent some of the complications.

Emphysema is a vicious disease. It takes a severe toll in life and health. It must be battled by all the forces of prevention if this chronic, disabling lung condition is to be kept from becoming high on the list of "civilized diseases."

Wash fruits thoroughly to be sure that no insecticide still remains on the surface.

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Q: Is emphysema a new disease?

A: Emphysema is a condition that has been known and studied for many years. Its seriousness has always been recognized by physicians. Undoubtedly there has been a tremendous increase in this lung disorder during the past 25 years.

Pollution of the air, especially in large cities, is a major contributor to the increased number of patients with emphysema. The irritation of smoking tobacco added to that of smog and other irritants combine to cause some of the changes within the lung that are responsible for emphysema.

Q: What is emphysema?

A: The word is derived from the Greek meaning "overinflated." The tiny air sacs that fill the lung have a spring-like recoil. They open when they are filled with oxygen and they bounce back when they are empty.

In emphysema the air sacs become enlarged and lose their rebound which interferes with the consumption of oxygen and then affect normal breathing. The patient has great difficulty in breathing during normal activity.

Q: Is asthma related to emphysema?

A: Repeated attacks of asthma make people somewhat more susceptible to these lung changes. Chronic bronchitis and bronchiectasis are two other diseases which are closely related to emphysema.

Q: What are the symptoms of emphysema?

A: The symptoms of all chronic lung conditions are so closely related that it would be unwise for anyone to suspect that he has emphysema without a complete chest study. A chronic cough with a shortness of breath that interferes with everyday activity at work and at home deserves urgent attention.

The accurate diagnosis of emphysema and other respiratory conditions can be made by X-ray examination, sputum study and by many of the new-

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Whenever he visits the East Coast, where bankers are big and their ideas are powerful, Rudolph Peterson is an honored guest. For Peterson represents the biggest bank of them all.

Peterson is president of the Bank of America, which has main offices in San Francisco and Los Angeles, 891 other offices throughout California, 34 overseas branches, and investments in almost every nation of the world.

When the bank's officers speak there are consequences, not merely because of its size, but because of its tradition. Oversimplified, Bank of America began with a concept and proved it.

Back in 1904 a first-generation American, A. P. Giannini, formed the Bank of Italy and set about lending money to some of the poorest workers who, he felt, were among the safest risks.

As Peterson related in an interview, the bank took chances with the worker that had seldom been taken before. When dealing with blue-collar people, serious consideration and great delay were banking traditions.

The largest banks on the East Coast generally have had a different tradition. Even some more readily identified with consumer rather than business lending began with big money and worked down to the small change.

Having proved a point, what does the Bank of America look for in the immediate economic future? Peterson was asked this as he relaxed at a desert resort where he met with Japanese businessmen to discuss trans-Pacific trade?

"There is no reason not to expect, in absolute terms, a consistent economic growth," he replied. "The economy is moving up steadily and it should continue."

Peterson concedes there will be soft spots. "A bit in textiles, in housing of course, and to some extent in the automotive industry," he said. But, he continued, the economy will remain strong.

The worst blight at the moment is indecision and uncertainty, he said. We are uncertain about the course of the war; we have many labor contracts coming up for renewal; we still have not decided for or against a tax increase.

As Peterson views it, the erratic course of prices in this year's stock market reflect this uncertainty. Uncertain stockholders reflect the businessman's indecision about committing funds while uncertain about the economy. But it may not be all that bleak.

"When you sit down with the feeling next year will be a good year," he said. "There will be some restraint about spending, but spending for improvement can be remedial, too, in lowering costs."

The end of the war in Viet Nam would be bullish, he feels. "We might have some pockets of temporary recession and unemployment, but it will be minimal."

The reason, as Peterson states it, is that the nation has so much work on the back burner.

In summary: Some soft spots, some dangers, more restraint than this year—but essentially a strong, growing economy in 1967.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A CONSTANT imbibor found his way home on a very dark night—after a very long and liquid party. "It's a wonder you didn't get lost," sneered his wife when he stumbled into the bedroom.

"How could I?" asked the imbibor. "Good old Erskine gave me this lantern to light the way for me." "That lantern," his wife informed him, "is a cage and the object inside it is one frightened canary. Now get to bed, you good-for-nothing sot!"

Grant Sawyer, Nevada's spry and youthful governor, is carrying with him these days two letters from youthful constituents. One reads, "I saw you on TV last night for the first time—on my ninth birthday. My dad told me not to worry—that you're a lot smarter than you look." The second letter: "I want you to know I'm going to be governor of Nevada, some day soon—but my father says I must finish my eighth-grade education to be as smart as you."

If it's any consolation to Governor Sawyer, my wife once mistook him for Cary Grant.

KAMPUS KUTUPS:

From N.Y.U.:

Soph: Why were you hanging around so long at that steam roller accident?

Frosh: I was just scraping up an acquaintance.

From Kansas State:

Marilyn: I feel like an ice cream soda.

From U. of Vermont:

Tourist: Have you done well with your bees this year?

Farmer: Yes and no. They haven't given much honey, but on the other hand, they sung my mother-in-law.

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Q: Is emphysema a new disease?

A: Emphysema is a condition that has been known and studied for many years. Its seriousness has always been recognized by physicians. Undoubtedly there has been a tremendous increase in this lung disorder during the past 25 years.

Pollution of the air, especially in large cities, is a major contributor to the increased number of patients with emphysema. The irritation of smoking tobacco added to that of smog and other irritants combine to cause some of the changes within the lung that are responsible for emphysema.

Q: What is emphysema?

A: The word is derived from the Greek meaning "overinflated." The tiny air sacs that fill the lung have a spring-like recoil. They open when they are filled with oxygen and they bounce back when they are empty.

In emphysema the air sacs become enlarged and lose their rebound which interferes with the consumption of oxygen and then affect normal breathing. The patient has great difficulty in breathing during normal activity.

Q: Is asthma related to emphysema?

A: Repeated attacks of asthma make people somewhat more susceptible to these lung changes. Chronic bronchitis and bronchiectasis are two other diseases which are closely related to emphysema.

Q: What are the symptoms of emphysema?

A: The symptoms of all chronic lung conditions are so closely related that it would be unwise for anyone to suspect that he has emphysema without a complete chest study. A chronic cough with a shortness of breath that interferes with everyday activity at work and at home deserves urgent attention.

The accurate diagnosis of emphysema and other respiratory conditions can be made by X-ray examination, sputum study and by many of the newly divided breathing tests.

Q: Is emphysema curable?

A: When once the changes in the lung have been definitely established the air spaces rarely return to normal. It is for this reason that physicians and educational campaigns direct their advice to the prevention of this disease.

The early recognition and treatment of this disorder may keep it in control but cannot cure it. Treatment is concentrated on the relief of symptoms and the effort to retard the progress of this chronic disease.

Q: What are the methods of treatment?

A: First and foremost is the absolute need to stop smoking. Patients must be removed from areas of high pollution and smog concentrate.

Special breathing postural exercises, and an abdominal belt can bring some breathing comfort. The antibiotics are used with or without cortisone to combat infections and to prevent some of the complications.

Emphysema is a vicious disease. It takes a severe toll in life and health. It must be battled by all the forces of prevention if this chronic, disabling lung condition is to be kept from becoming high on the list of "civilized diseases."

Wash fruits thoroughly to be sure that no insecticide still remains on the surface.

Ohio's List of Unsolved Murders Seems To Get Longer and Longer

By STEPHEN H. MILLER
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Go-go dancer Linda Marie Kohlmeier had nothing in common with librarian Marjorie A. Winbigger.

Chicago theologian Dr. Robert W. Spike had no more in common with service station attendant Claude Quesenberry.

And 81-year-old Mrs. Rose Winstel had nothing in common with any of those four.

Yet all five are linked now by the common element of murder. All are dead, victims of still unsolved slayings.

Miss Winbigger, 42, became the latest victim when her body was found Sunday in a cultural arts garden in Cleveland, just a few yards from a busy street. She had been on her way to sing in a classical music concert when she was assaulted and brutally beaten.

Pretty Linda Marie Kohlmeier, 19, still clad in a brief dance costume, was found dead along a remote rural road near Mount Vernon, the previous Sunday. She died of a blow to the head. She had been missing for more than a month after she left home to work as a secretary. A few days before her death, she called friends, worried about "trouble" she was in.

Mrs. Winstel apparently was the fifth victim of a strangler-rape who has stalked Cincinnati the last 10 months.

A widow living alone in a first-floor apartment, she was found Oct. 20, strangled with a heating pad cord.

The other strangling victims were all women in their 50s, all beaten on the head or face and all killed with whatever was close at hand:

Mrs. Enoch Harrington, 56, wife of a University of Cincinnati aerospace scientist, with a rope in the basement of her apartment building Dec. 2.

Mrs. Lois Dant, 58, wife of a retired railroad employee, with a necktie in her apartment April 4.

Mrs. Jeanette Messer, 56, a widow, with a nylon stocking as she walked her dog in a city park early June 10.

Mrs. Alice Hochausler, 51, wife of a surgeon, with her bath robe belt as she returned from driving her unmarried daughter to the daughter's apartment Oct.

11. She made the trip to protect the daughter from the same fate.

The Cincinnati terror increased Sept. 25 with the apparently unrelated triple slayings of the Gerald Brice family. Brice, 28, his wife Linda Jane, 24, and their 4-year-old daughter Debbie were stabbed. Mrs. Brice was raped.

Another unclosed file in Cincinnati is that of secretary Barbara Bowman, 31, who was fatally slashed on the throat after being run over by a stolen taxicab Aug. 14.

Spike, 43, became the newest case in Columbus files Oct. 17, when his raincoat-clad body was found in a guest room of a religious center he had helped dedicate just the day before. He was killed with one or two blows to the head.

Quesenberry, 41, was shot and killed in a West Jefferson service station near Columbus Nov. 11, 1965. Columbus police link the gun that killed him to two other murders.

One was the killing of Chester Joseph Scowden, 19, another gas station attendant, shot a month earlier in a downtown station.

Another was that of Loren Bollinger, 40, an Ohio State University rocket specialist gunned down in a shabby downtown office May 23.

Columbus police are still looking for the gunman who killed quiet 40-year-old baker Curtis H. Prunty Jr. as he crossed Long street near his home July 20.

The combined efforts of Columbus and Findlay policemen have not unraveled the death of Lisa Davenport, 32. The blonde housewife from the Columbus suburb of Upper Arlington was found in the trunk of a car in downtown Findlay May 10, shot four times.

A month later, Findlay police found the body of 8-year-old Tim Trask, shot by a sex deviate. Before his death, Findlay police could proudly say only one murder was known to have occurred in the town in 20 years.

Tim's death, and that of Lisa involved in two unsolved murders. Today, two murders later the Trask and Davenport cases are still the only unsolved ones.

However tragic, unsolved murders are at least relatively rare. Columbus has had only 18 since 1943, though eight have occurred since business school coed Mary Margaret Andrews, 18, was killed by a sex deviate in a garage Sept. 20, 1962.

Cleveland, which has almost as many unsolved murders in its current files as Columbus and Cincinnati combined, had seven last year out of 119 homicides.

Of 122 Cleveland homicides in the first 10 months of 1966, no arrests have been made in 14 cases.

No arrests were ever made in Raymond Sigler's case. He was the first Columbus gas station attendant to be attacked last year. Unlike Scowden or Quesenberry, Sigler lived. But the man who shot him has never been found.

"I don't care how smart you are," Sigler said afterwards. "Nobody can understand what causes this kind of thing."

GOP Picks Up 700 Seats In State Legislatures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans have gained 19 chambers and about 700 seats in state legislatures, most of them apparently as a side effect of their gubernatorial and congressional election comeback.

The biggest GOP legislative surge from Tuesday's balloting was in the Midwest, an Associated Press survey shows. Republicans recaptured the Senate

Michigan, and picked up one house in each of five other Midwest states.

Republicans won over both houses in Alaska, Arizona, Maine and Utah.

Only in Connecticut was there a major Democratic victory — but it came mostly because ancient rural - oriented boundaries of the General Assembly were redrawn to give urban areas equal voice.

But state after state reported Republican legislative pickups about in line with sawed or congressional races.

Many victories simply canceled gains the Democrats had registered in normally Republican states during the 1964 Johnson landslide, when Republicans lost 529 seats.

In several states, reapportionment changed the size of law-making bodies, complicating precise before-and-after comparisons. Ad scatteredn races remained in doubt, such as the two-vote victory by one Republican in Hawaii.

But the approximate totals showed Republicans gaining nearly 900 seats in 68 of the 87 chambers for which there was balloting. Democrats cut the net GOP gain back to about 700 by gaining in 12 chambers — but 129 seats of their pickup came in the huge Connecticut assembly, where a 3-2 Republican margin was turned into a 2-1 Democratic edge.

The over-all results leave 29 state senate in Democratic hands, 19 with Republicans and one tied. Democrats control 25 lower houses to 23 for the Republicans and one tied.

Democrats control both houses in 24 states, Republicans in 17. Eight states have divided control and Nebraska has a unicameral non partisan legislature.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Electricians continued their strike against West Coast shipyards today despite a warning from the Federal Mediation Service that the week-old tieup "poses a potential danger to the nation's defense needs."

Both sides in the dispute agreed Thursday to join government talks in Washington, D.C., Tuesday aimed at ending the strike, which has halted much of the building and repair of ships for Viet Nam service.

"But there is one stipulation," said John Lappin, international representative of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. "Unless there is some promise of progress we are only prepared to be there 48 hours. Then we'll have to get back and run the strike."

The union rejected a request from W.E. Simkin, mediation service director, that electricians return to work while the negotiations are in progress.

Lappin said IBEW picketing in the San Francisco Bay area was extended Thursday to 35 independent yards in addition to the five Pacific Coast Shipbuilders Association members already struck.

He said that more than 11,000 workers, including 5,000 in the San Francisco area were idled by the strike and work on about 22 ships, mostly cargo vessels, were tied up.

The union, which claims 1,400 members at struck yards in San Francisco, Seattle and Portland, is asking for 70-cent-an-hour wage increases to journeymen retroactive to July 1, 1965; 50 cents an hour more back to July 1, 1966 and 5 cents for the year beginning July 1, 1967.

If She Removes Her Skirt It's Sure To Be by Dior

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — If the girl takes off her skirt before trying to negotiate a revolving door, you can be sure she's wearing a Christian Dior.

This is nothing to be alarmed about, as the audience can vouch who watched the fast-paced spring collection opening of the New York house Wednesday.

Under the skirt made of catchable flying panels is still another, a slim sheath of the same fabric.

When women's clothes cost so much — a dazzling rhinestone cocktail dress equals the price of a small boat or a large car, for example — they aren't worth their status price unless they are immediately recognized.

Thus, so you will know the score, here are the signs of designs, for spring '67, by Gaspard Thon Berthelot of Dior:

The dress has movable parts. Besides panels that fly on skirt suits and dresses, tiers of stiff ruffles bounce on edges of party dresses, and puffs of ostrich

Ohio's List of Unsolved Murders Seems To Get Longer and Longer

By STEPHEN H. MILLER
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Go-go dancer Linda Marie Kohlmeier had nothing in common with librarian Marjorie A. Winbigger.

Chicago theologian Dr. Robert W. Spike had no more in common with service station attendant Claude Quesenberry.

And 81-year-old Mrs. Rose Winstel had nothing in common with any of those four.

Yet all five are linked now by the common element of murder. All are dead, victims of still unsolved slayings.

Miss Winbigger, 42, became the latest victim when her body was found Sunday in a cultural arts garden in Cleveland, just a few yards from a busy street. She had been on her way to sing in a classical music concert when she was assaulted and brutally beaten.

Pretty Linda Marie Kohlmeier, 19, still clad in a brief dance costume, was found dead along a remote rural road near Mount Vernon, the previous Sunday. She died of a blow to the head.

She had been missing for more than a month after she left home

GOP Picks Up 700 Seats In State Legislatures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans have gained 19 chambers and about 700 seats in state legislatures, most of them apparently as a side effect of their gubernatorial and congressional election comeback.

The biggest GOP legislative surge from Tuesday's balloting was in the Midwest, an Associated Press survey shows. Republicans recaptured the Senate

Electricians' Strike Threat To Defense

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Electricians continued their strike against West Coast shipyards today despite a warning from the Federal Mediation Service that the week-old tieup "poses a potential danger to the nation's defense needs."

Both sides in the dispute agreed Thursday to join government talks in Washington, D.C., Tuesday aimed at ending the strike, which has halted much of the building and repair of ships for Viet Nam service.

"But there is one stipulation," said John Lappin, international representative of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. "Unless there is some promise of progress we are only prepared to be there 48 hours. Then we'll have to get back and run the strike."

The union rejected a request from W.E. Simkin, mediation service director, that electricians return to work while the negotiations are in progress.

Lappin said IBEW picketing in the San Francisco Bay area was extended Thursday to 33 independent yards in addition to the five Pacific Coast Shipbuilders Association members already struck.

He said that more than 11,000 workers, including 5,000 in the San Francisco area were idled by the strike and work on about 22 ships, mostly cargo vessels, were tied up.

The union, which claims 1,400 members at struck yards in San Francisco, Seattle and Portland, is asking for 70-cent-an-hour wage increases to journeymen retroactive to July 1, 1965; 50 cents an hour more back to July 1, 1966 and 5 cents for the year beginning July 1, 1967.

to work as a secretary. A few days before her death, she called friends, worried about "trouble" she was in.

Mrs. Winstel apparently was the fifth victim of a strangler-who has stalked Cincinnati the last 10 months.

A widow living alone in a first-floor apartment, she was found Oct. 20, strangled with a heating pad cord.

The other strangling victims were all women in their 50s, all beaten on the head or face and all killed with whatever was close at hand:

Mrs. Emogene Harrington, 56, wife of a University of Cincinnati aerospace scientist, with a rope in the basement of her apartment building Dec. 2.

Mrs. Lois Dant, 58, wife of a retired railroad employe, with a necktie in her apartment April 4.

Mrs. Jeanette Messer, 56, a widow, with a nylon stocking as she walked her dog in a city park early June 10.

Mrs. Alice Hochausler, 51, wife of a surgeon, with her bath robe belt as she returned from driving her unmarried daughter to the daughter's apartment Oct.

Michigan, and picked up one house in each of five other Midwest states.

Republicans won over both houses in Alaska, Arizona, Maine and Utah.

Only in Connecticut was there a major Democratic victory — but it came mostly because ancient rural - oriented boundaries of the General Assembly were redrawn to give urban areas equal voice.

But state after state reported Republican legislative pickups about in line with saweird or congressional races.

Many victories simply canceled gains the Democrats had registered in normally Republican states during the 1964 Johnson landslide, when Republicans lost 52 seats.

In several states, reapportionment changed the size of law-making bodies, complicating precise before-and-after comparisons. Ad scatteredn races remained to doubt, such as the two-vote victory by one Republican in Hawaii.

But the approximate totals showed Republicans gaining nearly 900 seats in 68 of the 87 chambers for which there was balloting. Democrats cut the net GOP gain back to about 700 by gaining in 12 chambers — but 129 seats of their pickup came in the huge Connecticut assembly, where a 3-2 Republican margin was turned into a 2-1 Democratic edge.

The over-all results leave 29 state senate in Democratic hands, 19 with Republicans and one tied. Democrats control 25 lower houses to 23 for the Republicans and one tied.

Democrats control both houses in 24 states, Republicans in 17. Eight states have divided control and Nebraska has a unicameral non partisan legislature.

11. She made the trip to protect the daughter from the same fate.

The Cincinnati terror increased Sept. 25 with the apparently unrelated triple slayings of the Gerald Bricca family. Bricca, 28, his wife Linda Jane, 24, and their 4-year-old daughter Debbie were stabbed. Mrs. Bricca was raped.

Another unclosed file in Cincinnati is that of secretary Barbara Bowman, 31, who was fatally slashed on the throat after being run over by a stolen taxicab Aug. 14.

Spike, 43, became the newest case in Columbus files Oct. 17, when his raincoat-clad body was found in a guest room of a religious center he had helped dedicate just the day before. He was killed with one or two blows to the head.

Quesenberry, 41, was shot and killed in a West Jefferson service station near Columbus Nov. 11, 1965. Columbus police link the gun that killed him to two other murders.

One was the killing of Chester Joseph Scowden, 19, another gas station attendant, shot a month earlier in a downtown station.

Another was that of Loren Bollinger, 40, an Ohio State University rocket specialist gunned down in a shabby downtown office May 23.

Columbus police are still looking for the gunman who killed quiet 40-year-old baker Curtis H. Prunty Jr. as he crossed Long street near his home July 20.

The combined efforts of Columbus and Findlay policemen have not unraveled the death of Lisa Davenport, 32. The blonde housewife from the Columbus suburb of Upper Arlington was found in the trunk of a car in downtown Findlay May 10, shot four times.

A month later, Findlay police found the body of 8-year-old Tim Trask, shot by a sex deviate. Before his death, Findlay police could proudly say only one murder was known to have occurred in the town in 20 years.

Tim's death, and that of Lisa involved in two unsolved murders. Today, two murders later the Trask and Davenport cases are still the only unsolved ones.

However tragic, unsolved murders are at least relatively rare. Columbus has had only 18 since 1943, though eight have occurred since business school coed Mary Margaret Andrews, 18, was killed by a sex deviate in a garage Sept. 20, 1962.

Cleveland, which has almost as many unsolved murders in its current files as Columbus and Cincinnati combined, had seven last year out of 119 homicides.

Of 122 Cleveland homicides in the first 10 months of 1966, no arrests have been made in 14 cases.

No arrests were ever made in Raymond Sigler's case. He was the first Columbus gas station attendant to be attacked last year. Unlike Scowden or Quesenberry, Sigler lived. But the man who shot him has never been found.

"I don't care how smart you are," Sigler said afterwards. "Nobody can understand what causes this kind of thing."

Admit Leak In September Nuclear Test

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department acknowledged Thursday that "a small amount of radioactivity" was accidentally released into the atmosphere on Sept. 12 from an underground U.S. nuclear test blast in Nevada.

But the amount of radioactive debris was so small that it could be detected only "by sensitive measuring instruments located in the immediate vicinity of the testing area," press officer Karl Barth said.

The spread of radioactivity was confined to U.S. territorial limits, he said, and therefore there was no violation of the limited test ban treaty.

The question came up at the State Department 24 hours after another spokesman, Robert J. McCloskey, announced that the administration is looking into the possibility that a recent underground explosion in the Soviet Union may have violated the test ban treaty.

If She Removes Her Skirt It's Sure To Be by Dior

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — If the girl takes off her skirt before trying to negotiate a revolving door, you can be sure she's wearing a Christian Dior.

This is nothing to be alarmed about, as the audience can vouch who watched the fast-paced spring collection opening of the New York house Wednesday.

Under the skirt made of catchable flying panels is still another, a slim sheath of the same fabric.

When women's clothes cost so much — a dazzling rhinestone cocktail dress equals the price of a small boat or a large car, for example — they aren't worth their status price unless they are immediately recognized.

Thus, so you will know the score, here are the signs of designs, for spring '67, by Gaspard Thon Berthelot of Dior:

The dress has movable parts. Besides panels that fly on skirt suits and dresses, tiers of stiff ruffles bounce on edges of party dresses, and puffs of ostrich feathers flutter about the face and arms. Diaphanous capes and stoles float.

Dresses for evening are frilly or silly, or elegantly simple columns of crepe.

For day the way to tell a Dior is by its cut — narrow at the shoulder, cinched at the waist, and flared a bit at the hip; or by its mannish tailoring.

Dior hemlines, which have had more ups and downs than most, are knee-modest for day and inches higher for evening, worn with white stockings and silver shoes.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Her Hubby's Got the 7-Year Itch

DEAR ABBY: My husband is in the retail business. I am strictly a wife and mother. There is a very attractive woman who comes to town and calls on my husband for business reasons. She stays at the hotel for several days at a time. When she's in town my husband doesn't even know he has a family. He has all his meals with her and keeps ridiculously late hours. This woman is married, has a family and is about 10 years older than my husband. Her husband must trust her implicitly to let her travel the way she does.

My husband seems "preoccupied" lately, and is considerably less romantically inclined. We've been married for six years and were very happy — until now. Do you believe in a woman's intuition? Or am I unjustly suspicious? Is need advice, Abby.

LUMP IN MY THROAT
DEAR LUMP: Your husband appears to have a premature case of the seven-year-itch. Don't scratch the "evidence." Let him know you are jealous, suspicious, and unwilling to put up with any philandering.

DEAR ABBY: We need help desperately! Last summer a new family moved into our neighborhood which is in one of the nicer suburbs of this city.

These people are a disgrace! They let their yard go until the weeds were nearly three feet tall. They haven't washed their windows since they moved in. They have dogs, which they have trained to use everyone's yard but their own. And to top it off, they hang their wash in their LIVING ROOM WINDOWS! They have no draperies, and it can be seen from the street.

This is a high class, respectable neighborhood, Abby. Everyone else takes pride in his house and yard. What can we do with people like this?

SICKENED NEIGHBORS
DEAR NEIGHBORS: First, call on these neighbors and rectify your complaints directly to them. If that doesn't bring results, ask a lawyer if these people have a right to impose that kind of eyesore and inconvenience (the dogs!) on their neighbors. The lawyer's fee could be split up among the offended neighbors, and might be well worth it.

DEAR ABBY: If baby-sitters ever form a union, these rules should be included:

(1) Time and a half for people who come home later than they say they will. (I don't mind if they're half an hour, or even 45 minutes later, but folks who say they'll be home "around midnight" and then trail in at 3 a. m. should pay some sort of penalty.)

(2) Nonmembers of the family who are "added" to the sitter's care at the last minute should not be looked after free. (This goes for neighbors and relatives who leave their children to "play" with those in the sitter's care.)

(3) Everything a sitter is expected to do should be spelled out. Sitters shouldn't be expected to do the ironing just because there is a basket of clothes to be ironed and the children have been put to bed.

If sitters and those who hire them had a better understanding of the above mentioned, everyone would be a lot happier.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson kept mum a while about Tuesday's election, as if to digest the result in which Republicans were the gainers, but finally admitted things would be a little tougher for him now.

This doesn't mean he has become a reticent politician. In this year's election campaigns he was rather more abset than reticent. It was the absence which saved him from some possible embarrassment later.

His decision to go to Asia in mid-October as the campaigns heated up, instead of spinning around the country to plug for Democrats in trouble, raised the two obvious questions:

Was the trip necessary then or couldn't it have waited until after the elections. Or was he afraid that, if he did campaign for those who lost, some or much or all of the blame would be dumped on him?

In fact, Sen. Wayne Morse, Oregon Democrat, warned Johnson to keep his nose out of Oregon politics. Morse's warning came while the President was still in Asia and there was the possibility that when he returned a week before elections he might campaign.

Johnson removed himself from any campaigning when he did come back and announce he needed surgery.

In effect, Morse, constant critic of Johnson on the war in Viet Nam, told the President he would be a potential disaster for Oregon's Democratic candidates if he went there.

This was ironic since Morse himself refused to support the Democratic candidate for the Senate, Rep. Robert B. Duncan, a Johnson supporter on Viet Nam, who was running against Oregon's Gov. Mark O. Hatfield. Morse said that if Johnson

4 Men Indicted For Draft Scheme

CLEVELAND (AP) — Four men were indicted by a federal grand jury Thursday in connection with an alleged draft-dodging scheme that involved false Ohio National Guard membership statements.

Indicted on charges of selling the false certificates were Donald Taylor, 29, Cleveland, and Frank Kovach Jr., 22, Parma.

Charged with buying the statements are Kenneth Narwid 20, Akron, and Robert Spalletto, 22, Chicago.

Before Johnson went to Asia it was pretty well known a number of Democrats might lose. Take three of the most prominent:

California's Gov. Edmund G. Brown running for re-election against movie star Ronald Reagan; Illinois, Sen. Paul N. Douglas, running for re-election against a businessman, Charles H. Percy; and, in New York, a New York City councilman, Frank D. O'Connor, running against Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller who was seeking re-election.

Except for a brief visit to New York in support of O'Connor, Johnson visited none of the three states. But Kennedy did. And so did Humphrey.

The three Republicans — Reagan, Percy and Rockefeller — won. Now no one can say that Johnson is responsible.

And Johnson now has the luxury of sitting back to see if anyone tries to blame Kennedy, no pai of Johnson and perhaps his rival for the presidential nomination in 1968, although Kennedy denies he will be.

Weeks before Johnson went to Asia a public opinion poll showed Kennedy the choice of Democrats and Independents for the presidency in 1968 over Johnson. Humphrey has never been mentioned as a possible Johnson rival.

She stays at the hotel for several days at a time. When she's in town my husband doesn't even know he has a family. He has all his meals with her and keeps ridiculously late hours. This woman is married, has a family and is about 10 years older than my husband. Her husband must trust her implicitly to let her travel the way she does.

My husband seems "preoccupied" lately, and is considerably less romantically inclined. We've been married for six years and were very happy — until now. Do you believe in a woman's intuition? Or am I unjustly suspicious? Is need advice, Abby.

LUMP IN MY THROAT
DEAR LUMP: Your husband appears to have a premature case of the seven-year-itch. Don't scratch the "evidence." Let him know you are jealous, suspicious, and unwilling to put up with any philandering.

DEAR ABBY: We need help desperately! Last summer a new family moved into our neighborhood which is in one of the nicer suburbs of this city.

These people are a disgrace! They let their yard go until the weeds were nearly three feet tall. They haven't washed their windows since they moved in. They have dogs, which they have trained to use everyone's yard but their own. And to top it off, they hang their wash in their LIVING ROOM WINDOWS! They have no draperies, and it can be seen from the street.

This is a high class, respectable neighborhood, Abby. Everyone else takes pride in his house and yard. What can we do with people like this?

SICKENED NEIGHBORS
DEAR NEIGHBORS: First, call on these neighbors and recite your complaints directly to them. If that doesn't bring results, ask a lawyer if these people have a right to impose that kind of eyesore and inconvenience (the dogs!) on their neighbors. The lawyer's fee could be split up among the offended neighbors, and might be well worth it.

DEAR ABBY: If baby-sitters ever form a union, these rules should be included:

(1) Time and a half for people who come home later than they say they will. (I don't mind if they're half an hour, or even 45 minutes later, but folks who say they'll be home "around midnight" and then trail in at 3 a. m. should pay some sort of penalty.)

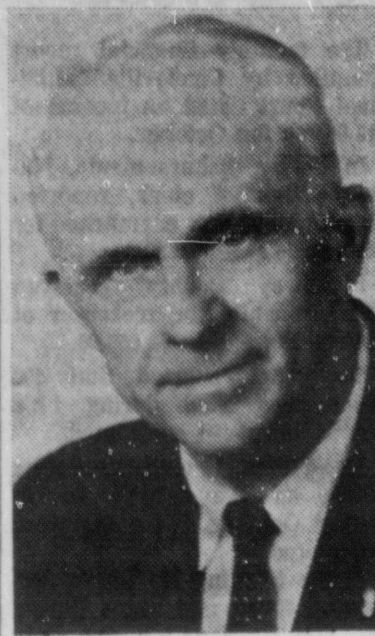

(2) Nonmembers of the family who are "added" to the sitter's care at the last minute should not be looked after free. (This goes for neighbors and relatives who leave their children to "play" with those in the sitter's care.)

(3) Everything a sitter is expected to do should be spelled out. Sitters shouldn't be expected to do the ironing just because there is a basket of clothes to be ironed and the children have been put to bed.

If sitters and those who hire them had a better understanding of the above mentioned, everyone would be a lot happier.

$1,000 Damages At Buckeye Lake

NEWARK, Ohio (AP) — The place looks like a wreck but damage is estimated at only about $1,000 in the Buckeye Lake amusement park area ripped by a windstorm during heavy rain Thursday.

What makes the area seem a disaster spot is the 150-foot section of roller coaster which collapsed into the water. It had been condemned and out of use for several years, however.

Corn, Bean Estimates

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ohio's 1966 production of corn for grain is estimated at 254,150,000 bushels and of soybeans at 61,132,000 bushels in the U. S. Agriculture Department crop estimate issued Thursday.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson kept mum a while about Tuesday's election, as if to digest the result in which Republicans were the gainers, but finally admitted things would be a little tougher for him now.

This doesn't mean he has become a reticent politician. In this year's election campaigns he was rather more abet than reticent. It was the absence which saved him from some possible embarrassment later.

His decision to go to Asia in mid-October as the campaigns heated up, instead of spinning around the country to plug for Democrats in trouble, raised the two obvious questions:

Was the trip necessary then or couldn't it have waited until after the elections. Or was he afraid that, if he did campaign for those who lost, some or much or all of the blame would be dumped on him?

In fact, Sen. Wayne Morse, Oregon Democrat, warned Johnson to keep his nose out of Oregon politics. Morse's warning came while the President was still in Asia and there was the possibility that when he returned a week before elections he might campaign.

Johnson removed himself from any campaigning when he did come back and announce he needed surgery.

In effect, Morse, constant critic of Johnson on the war in Viet Nam, told the President he would be a potential disaster for Oregon's Democratic candidates if he went there.

This was ironic since Morse himself refused to support the Democratic candidate for the Senate, Rep. Robert B. Duncan, a Johnson supporter on Viet Nam, who was running against Oregon's Gov. Mark O. Hatfield. Morse said that if Johnson visited Oregon "He will probably help elect Hatfield." Hatfield won anyway, although Johnson never went near Oregon. But New York's Sen. Robert F. Kennedy did and pitched for Duncan.

But, for that matter, so did Johnson's vice president, Hubert H. Humphrey.

Before Johnson went to Asia it was pretty well known a number of Democrats might lose.

California's Gov. Edmund G.

4 Men Indicted For Draft Scheme

CLEVELAND (AP) — Four men were indicted by a federal grand jury Thursday in connection with an alleged draft-dodging scheme that involved false Ohio National Guard membership statements.

Indicted on charges of selling the false certificates were Donald Taylor, 29, Cleveland, and Frank Kovach Jr., 22, Parma.

Eight Indicted As Draft Objectors

CLEVELAND (AP) — Four Jehovah's Witnesses and four Mennonites were indicted by a federal grand jury Thursday on charges that they refused to accept government hospital work when called for the draft.

The government presented evidence that the eight men refused to take the hospital jobs after they had told their local draft boards religious beliefs prevented them from going into the armed services.

Orbiter 2 Now in Place For Operation

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — America's Lunar Orbiter 2 on a mission to take pictures of 13 possible astronaut landing sites — has company in lunar orbit — three Soviet spacecraft.

But scientists said Thursday after the 850-pound craft was locked in orbit that there is no danger of collision or radio interference.

Scientists at Jet Propulsion Laboratory who are controlling the craft ordered a braking rocket to be fired for 10 minutes Thursday, slowing Orbiter 2 from 3,126 miles an hour to 2,678 and allowing it to slip into an orbit 1,147 to 119 miles high.

The Soviet craft in lunar orbit are Luna 10, Luna 11 and Luna 12, also sent to scout landing sites. The first two sent no pictures, but Luna 12 has transmitted photos taken from an altitude of 62 miles.

Orbiter 2 will circle the moon every three hours and 40 minutes until Nov. 17 while controllers plot its track and study the moon's gravitational field.

Then the orbit will be altered to bring the spacecraft within 28 miles of the lunar surface when the picture taking begins Nov. 18.

How Weather Looks Today

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Weather Bureau summary of Ohio's weather:

Substantial rains ended in Ohio Thursday following the passage of a cold front that pushed eastward across the state.

Cloudiness covered the state during the night and before sunrise most temperatures had lowered into the 30s.

Drizzle was falling in eastern Ohio this morning.

Sample temperatures this morning included Toledo 37, Cleveland and Cincinnati, 39, Columbus 36, and Marietta 40.

Cloudiness in Ohio with drizzle in the east this morning was to be followed by partly sunny skies this afternoon. Cloudiness will gain increase tonight and Saturday. There will be chance for occasional light rain or snow especially in the northern counties.

Temperatures today and Saturday were to register in the 40s with lows tonight mostly in the 30s.

CENTRAL OHIO — Mostly cloudy and cold tonight. Low in mid 30s. Saturday cloudy and cold with a chance of occasional light rain or snow. High in the mid 40s.

NORTHWEST OHIO — Cloudy tonight. Low 30-35. Saturday cloudy and continued cold with chance of snow flurries.

SOUTHEAST OHIO — Mostly cloudy and cold tonight. Low in mid 30s. Saturday cloudy and cold with a slight chance of occasional light rain or snow. High Saturday in the mid 40s.

Temperatures will average 24 degrees below normal Saturday through Wednesday. Representative normal daily highs and lows: Cleveland 50-32, Columbus 51-32, Cincinnati 54-36. Cooler throughout period except a little warmer Sunday and again about Wednesday. Precipitation averaging around .5 inch, mostly as showers during first half of period.

Ustinov Interview Finds Actor in Usual Top Form

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Succotash," said Peter Ustinov, peering over the menu of the Disney Studio commissary. "What is succotash?"

He was told that it was a combination of corn and lima beans. "So that's what it is!" he exclaimed. "And I always thought succotash was an obscure battle of your Civil War."

The double Academy winner—supporting awards for "Spartacus," 1960, "Topkapi," 1965—was in excellent Ustinov form—puckish, provocative, retund. "I really don't eat very much." "Then how do you explain your girth?" "When I was a baby, we had no girth control."

His size seems fitting for his current assignment, the title role of "Blackbeard's Ghost," and he looked properly piratical in his bandanna and buccanier's costume. He also seems well suited to the philosopher's robe in "Barefoot in Athens," tonight's NBC special in which he portrays Socrates. It is his first venture into television drama since he played Samuel Johnson on an early "Omnibus" program.

German Situation Receives Icy 'No Comment' from U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington officials strictly observed Thursday the traditional "no comment" attitude on the prospect that Kurt George Kiesinger may become West German chancellor. The silence this time, however, was noticeably icier than usual.

The reason obviously is concern because of Kiesinger's past connections with the Nazis. Whether he can become an effective leader of the new democratic German state with that background is an open question, some experts in German affairs believe.

Kiesinger was picked by the dominant Christian Democratic party as its candidate to succeed Chancellor Ludwig Erhard as chief of the West German government. But the party falls four votes short of a Bundestag majority and Kiesinger still faces the task of finding enough

Labor Takes Bad Drubbing In House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Organized labor took a substantial drubbing in Tuesday's election, primarily in the House.

Some 37 House members who supported labor on most key votes in the last session were defeated for re-election and another 13 retired. Only a handful of labor foes were beaten or have retired.

The result cast considerable doubt on the prospects for revival next year of such labor-supported measures as unemployment compensation reform and repeal of Section 14B of the Taft-Hartley Act which permits states to ban the union shop under which workers must join unions.

A tally today showed that 47 House members who voted last year to repeal Section 14B will be missing from the House in January, 35 through defeat. Two others were beaten in Senate bids. Only 18 House members who opposed repeal will be gone, most through retirement.

Most of the 47 were among 39 defeated members who voted to bring small businesses under minimum wage coverage and were among 33 beaten congressmen who opposed GOP efforts to slow down minimum wage hikes.

The 14B repeal move faltered in the Senate and was abandoned after Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen led a filibuster against it. But it became an issue in a number of campaigns this fall.

Reed Larson, executive vice president of the National Right to Work Committee, the pen pal national group opposing repeal, said in an interview today that the issue "contributed substantially to the majority by which the administration was repudiated" in Tuesday's balloting.

Use The Classifieds

CLEVELAND (AP) — Nine voters who contend the 1964 law setting up Ohio's 24 congressional districts is unconstitutional presented evidence to a three-judge panel in U.S. District Court here Wednesday.

A lawyer for the plaintiffs presented documents to show disparity in population of the districts. Defendants in the suit are Gov. James A. Rhodes and Secretary of State Ted W. Brown.

The state was given until Nov. 30 to file briefs and the plaintiffs until Dec. 13 to reply.

Master Plan for Change To Go Before Educators

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A master plan commissioned by the legislature last year to chart a course of change for Ohio schools during the next 30 to 50 years will be presented to the Ohio Board of Education Monday.

The massive study will be presented to the board at its regular meeting before being sent to the statehouse for submission to the 107th Ohio General Assembly early in 1967.

The plan will stress one major theme — cooperation of efforts among Ohio's 714 independent school districts to meet modern school problems and challenges.

One proposal expected in the report will be one for creating intermediate units in Ohio, administrative organizations halfway between state and local governments. This has already been adopted by 32 other states.

Intermediate units would be designed to provide for cooperative district programs in areas like vocational training, data processing and other high-cost training and administrative programs small districts could not afford on their own. They would serve much the same function as county boards of education do today, but carry more authority.

Ralph Purdy, Miami University professor, is directing the year-long research effort, aided by a special committee.

The state board and the legislature are expected to give the report a long study, and Purdy does not expect any re-organization of districts to come about before 1970.

Eight Indicted As Draft Objectors

CLEVELAND (AP) — Four Jehovah's Witnesses and four Mennonites were indicted by a federal grand jury Thursday on charges that they refused to accept government hospital work when called for the draft.

The government presented evidence that the eight men refused to take the hospital jobs after they had told their local draft boards religious beliefs prevented them from going into the armed services.

Orbiter 2 Now in Place For Operation

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — America's Lunar Orbiter 2 on a mission to take pictures of 13 possible astronaut landing sites — has company in lunar orbit — three Soviet spacecraft.

But scientists said Thursday after the 850-pound craft was locked in orbit that there is no danger of collision or radio interference.

Scientists at Jet Propulsion Laboratory who are controlling the craft ordered a braking rocket to be fired for 10 minutes Thursday, slowing Orbiter 2 from 3,126 miles an hour to 2,678 and allowing it to slip into an orbit 1,147 to 119 miles high.

The Soviet craft in lunar orbit are Luna 10, Luna 11 and Luna 12, also sent to scout landing sites. The first two sent no pictures, but Luna 12 has transmitted photos taken from an altitude of 62 miles.

Orbiter 2 will circle the moon every three hours and 40 minutes until Nov. 17 while controllers plot its track and study the moon's gravitational field.

Then the orbit will be altered to bring the spacecraft within 28 miles of the lunar surface when the picture taking begins Nov. 18.

How Weather Looks Today

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Weather Bureau summary of Ohio's weather:

Substantial rains ended in Ohio Thursday following the passage of a cold front that pushed eastward across the state.

Cloudiness covered the state during the night and before sunrise most temperatures had lowered into the 30s.

Drizzle was falling in eastern Ohio this morning.

Ustinov Interview Finds Actor in Usual Top Form

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Succotash," said Peter Ustinov, peering over the menu of the Disney Studio commissary. "What is succotash?"

He was told that it was a combination of corn and lima beans. "So that's what it is!" he exclaimed. "And I always thought succotash was an obscure battle of your Civil War."

The double Academy winner—supporting awards for "Spartacus," 1960, "Topkapi," 1965—was in excellent Ustinov form—puckish, provocative, rotund. "I really don't eat very much."

"Then how do you explain your girth?" "When I was a baby, we had no birth control."

His size seems fitting for his current assignment, the title role of "Blackbeard's Ghost," and he looked properly piratical in his bandanna and buccanier's costume. He also seems well suited to the philosopher's robe in "Barefoot in Athens," the tonight's NBC special in which he portrays Socrates. It is his first venture into television drama since he played Samuel Johnson on an early "Omnibus" program.

As usual, the Ustinovian career is proceeding in all directions. Currently in release is "The Lady L," which he wrote and directed and also played a small role.

"I have a book of short stories called 'Frontiers of the Sea,' which is being published this month," he reported. "Two new plays of mine will soon be produced in London—'The Unknown Soldier and His Wife,' which is being done by the Royal Shakespeare Company, and 'Halfway Up the Tree.'"

Also in Ustinov's future is a novel. It concerns the sheriff of a small Southern town who wins a European trip and gets into an argument in an English pub with the Communist shop steward of a local union. "The sheriff shoots the man out of habit," said the author. "The rest of the book concerns the English government's dilemma of how to punish him for doing what comes naturally."

"Blackbeard's Ghost" is the first Hollywood film for Ustinov since the debacle of "John Goldfarb, Please Come Home" ("I had an inclination it would turn out badly because we were enjoying it too much."

German Situation Receives Icy 'No Comment' from U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington officials strictly observed Thursday the traditional "no comment" attitude on the prospect that Kurt George Kiesinger may become West German chancellor. The silence this time, however, was noticeably icier than usual.

The reason obviously is concern because of Kiesinger's past connections with the Nazis. Whether he can become an effective leader of the new democratic German state with that background is an open question, some experts in German affairs believe.

Kiesinger was picked by the dominant Christian Democratic party as its candidate to succeed Chancellor Ludwig Erhard as chief of the West German government. But the party falls four votes short of a Bundestag majority and Kiesinger still faces the task of finding enough outside support to get the post.

Kiesinger is not unknown in Washington where his contributions to the shaping of postwar Germany are appreciated. He has visited here several times in recent years as a parliamentarian.

9 To Challenge Constitutionality Of Redistricting

CLEVELAND (AP) — Nine voters who contend the 1964 law setting up Ohio's 24 congressional districts is unconstitutional presented evidence to a three-judge panel in U.S. District Court here Wednesday.

A lawyer for the plaintiffs presented documents to show disparity in population of the districts. Defendants in the suit are Gov. James A. Rhodes and Secretary of State Ted W. Brown.

The state was given until Nov. 30 to file briefs and the plaintiffs until Dec. 13 to reply.

Labor Takes Bad Drubbing In House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Organized labor took a substantial drubbing in Tuesday's election, primarily in the House.

Some 37 House members who supported labor on most key votes in the last session were defeated for re-election and another 13 retired. Only a handful of labor foes were beaten or have retired.

The result cast considerable doubt on the prospects for revival next year of such labor-supported measures as unemployment compensation reform and repeal of Section 14B of the Taft-Hartley Act which permits states to ban the union shop under which workers must join unions.

A tally today showed that 47 House members who voted last year to repeal Section 14B will be missing from the House in January, 35 through defeat. Two others were beaten in Senate bids. Only 18 House members who opposed repeal will be gone, most through retirement.

Most of the 47 were among 39 defeated members who voted to bring small businesses under minimum wage coverage and were among 33 beaten congressmen who opposed GOP efforts to slow down minimum wage hikes.

The 14B repeal move faltered in the Senate and was abandoned after Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen led a filibuster against it. But it became an issue in a number of campaigns this fall.

Reed Larson, executive vice president of the National Right to Work Committee, the pen national group opposing repeal, said in an interview today that the issue "contributed substantially to the majority by which the administration was repudiated" in Tuesday's balloting.

Master Plan for Change To Go Before Educators

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A master plan commissioned by the legislature last year to chart a course of change for Ohio schools during the next 30 to 50 years will be presented to the Ohio Board of Education Monday.

The massive study will be presented to the board at its regular meeting before being sent to the statehouse for submission to the 107th Ohio General Assembly early in 1967.

The plan will stress one major theme — cooperation of efforts among Ohio's 714 independent school districts to meet modern school problems and challenges.

One proposal expected in the report will be one for creating intermediate units in Ohio, administrative organizations halfway between state and local governments. This has already been adopted by 32 other states.

Intermediate units would be designed to provide for cooperative district programs in areas like vocational training, data processing and other high-cost training and administrative programs small districts could not afford on their own. They would serve much the same function as county boards of education do today, but carry more authority.

Ralph Purdy, Miami University professor, is directing the year-long research effort, aided by a special committee.

The state board and the legislature are expected to give the report a long study, and Purdy does not expect any reorganization of districts to come about before 1970.

Farm Tools Denied

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Billie S. Fleming, a Manning, S.C., farmer and spokesman for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said at a recent meeting of the National Advisory Commission on Food and Fiber that Negroes have been denied important tools of modern farming because private lenders and federal agencies have refused them loans.

God's Indestructible Word

Jehoiakim tries to destroy Jeremiah's prophecies by burning them

Scripture—Jeremiah 36.

By R. H. Ramsey

THE EPISODE assigned to today's lesson is the first instance of Bible burning, and it took place near the end of Judah's history. The king involved, Jehoiakim, was the second son of the "good" King Josiah and the last of the kings of Judah to reign in Jerusalem. He was on the throne only by permission of the ruler of Egypt and when his reign ended, in 588 B.C., the Babylonians had begun the invasion that was to end in the destruction of Jerusalem.

The greatest man in Judah at that time was the bold, fearless prophet Jeremiah, whose ministry lasted for more than 60 years. Though chronologically old, he was youthful in his intellectual and spiritual vigor.

Near the end of Jeremiah's ministry the Lord commanded him to put in writing all the prophecies he had uttered thus far against Israel, Judah and all the nations. God's purpose is clearly stated. The prophecies were recorded to be read aloud to the people of Judah, so all could hear the warnings and doom predicted for their city.

GOLDEN TEXT

and might turn from their evil ways and be forgiven.

Instead of writing out this book himself, Jeremiah called in Baruch, probably the most gifted scribe then in Judah, and dictated to him the word of God as it had been delivered to him. Since, for some reason, Jeremiah himself could not read the collected prophecies at the Temple, he gave this task to the faithful Baruch.

It was read first to the people gathered from all Judah for a fast day in the Temple, but for the most part, the people paid little heed to the divine word. One man, Michaeliah, grandson of the Temple scribe Shaphan (who had discovered and read the book of law now called Deuteronomy to Jehoiakim's father, King Josiah), hurried to the forefront of the king's palace and repeated what he had heard to the royal princes gathered there.

The princes sent for Baruch, who read the entire prophecy to them. In consternation and fear, they insisted the scroll should be read before the king. Since these princes were also the king's advisers and knew him well, they took the precautions of having the scroll put in a safe place and advised Baruch to take Jeremiah and hide for once the king had heard the prophecy he might seek to kill the prophet. Then they reported the contents of the prophecy to King Jehoiakim.

The king sent Jehudi to fetch the scroll and read it to him in the presence of all his advisers and counselors. Because it was wintertime, the king was seated before a brazier filled with live coals. After Jehudi had read three or four columns of the scroll, the king grabbed the book, cut off the already-read portions and thrust them into the fire. Three of the counselors pleaded with the king not to thus destroy the words of God, but the king ignored them. Piece by piece, as it was read by Jehudi, the king cut off the scroll and burned it, until the entire book was consumed.

In great anger, the king ordered the apprehension of both the prophet Jeremiah and the scribe, Baruch. But the Lord intervened and hid them and they were saved.

God's purpose in hiding the prophet and his scribe is now revealed. God commanded Jeremiah to rewrite the scroll that had been burned, adding to it an account of how the misguided king thought he could do away with the inevitable judgment of God by burning the prophecy, and God's threefold judgment upon the arrogantly blasphemous king himself.

First, no descendant of Jehoiakim's will ever sit upon the throne of David. Second, Jehoiakim's body, instead of having an honorable burial, will be cast out upon a field (of the actual burial of Jehoiakim there is no Scriptural record). Third, upon Jehoiakim and the people there will come punishment from a foreign nation.

The foreign nation was, of course, Babylon, whose armies, under the command of Nebuchadnezzar, were already within the borders of Judah.

Thus began the war between the pen and the penknife. And the pen was destined to triumph.

China's Middle Group Ignored As Youth and Age Join Forces

HONG KONG (AP) — China's bypassed generation is stirring restlessly.

Young men beyond the age of 20 dislike the prospect of what they see as a strange alliance between the old and the very young, suggests one of them, a young former Red Chinese army officer who fled the mainland only two years ago.

The very old are the top leaders of the Politburo. Their average age is somewhere above 50. The very young are the teen-age Red Guards, the rampaging youngsters the old men are using today as a political weapon.

In between is a generation bypassed in a grim power struggle at the top in Peking. That generation includes the many millions in the Young Communist League. It is now virtually dismantled, probably because its members were too mature to be used in the way the Red Guards are used to push what the new leaders, headed by Defense Minister Lin Biao, call the "great proletarian cultural revolution."

The young officer said there was no question in his mind but that Red China now is in deep crisis and that if it continues on its present course it could lead to collapse of the regime. But, knowing his Chinese brethren, he did not feel that the regime would collapse. When the danger became too acute, he predicted, there would be a compromise.

Much of what is going on — and has been going on for some years now in the slowly unfolding power struggle — is unpopular, he said. But one development is generally welcomed among the Chinese.

"It was good to get rid of the Russians," he said with an air of grim satisfaction. "It was good to get rid of foreign domination."

If he is a sample of Chinese thinking, there never was any love for the Russians. Even his fellow officers, he said, welcomed the split although some professionals regretted the loss of Soviet military assistance.

Speaking through an interpreter, the ex-officer said that when he left mainland China he felt the people were not happy, that they were hoping for political and economic changes. Mostly, the literate element wanted less restrictions on their individual lives.

The Chinese people in general, he said, did not think highly of the Communists or communism, but didn't think highly of the Americans either. His friends tended to believe that Americans were aggressors and that they were threatening China's security.

Gradually, he seemed sure, China would pull out of its present state of chaos. And gradually, too, he added, China will develop its own system, even though it might be a Communist system.

"Marxism is outdated," he snorted. "Mao Tse-tung is no Marxist. For a Chinese to say he is Marxist-Leninist is to talk nonsense. Marxism-Leninism is a foreign idea. If there is going to be communism, it should be Chinese communism."

one, a semantic confusion.

"Put it this way then: A situationist is prepared in any concrete case to suspend, ignore or violate any principle if by doing so he can effect more good than by following it.

"What is good? Good is first and foremost the good of people. Christians call it love, meaning neighbor-concern—to seek the well-being of people.

"The good is what works. Apart from the helping or hurting of people, ethical judgments or evaluations are meaningless."

Situation ethics has been criticized, especially by Roman Catholics, who uphold certain absolute moral laws. An American Jesuit, the Rev. Robert Gleason, said: "It is not in Christian tradition to present love as the exclusive motive for moral action."

Fletcher added: "Situation ethics is criticized for saying everything is relative.

"But we say, 'Look boys, this is the 20th century. The scientifically sophisticated world view is relativistic. You are going to be left out in the cold if you think the moral sciences are somehow an exception to this rule and this influence.'"

Fletcher, in turn, criticizes persons he calls legalists—"people who like to wallow or cover in the security of the law."

"They want to maintain absolutes of good and evil, but they are not going to get away with it," he said. "Goodness is what happens to a human act, it is not in the act itself."

Johnson also told reporters he is feeling good, but that the hernia plagues him a bit—just as if he were carrying a weight attached to his side.

His voice was noticeably hoarse.

JEHOIAKIM TRIES TO DESTROY JEREMIAH'S PROPHECIES BY BURNING THEM

Scripture—Jeremiah 36.

By R. H. Ramsey

THE EPISODE assigned to today's lesson is the first instance of Bible burning, and it took place near the end of Judah's history. The king involved, Jehoiakim, was the second son of the "good" King Josiah and the last of the kings of Judah to reign in Jerusalem. He was on the throne only by permission of the ruler of Egypt and when his reign ended, in 598 B.C., the Babylonians had begun the invasion that was to end in the destruction of Jerusalem.

The greatest man in Judah at that time was the bold, fearless prophet Jeremiah, whose ministry lasted for more than 60 years. Though chronologically old, he was youthful in his intellectual and spiritual vigor.

Near the end of Jeremiah's ministry the Lord commanded him to put into writing all the prophecies he had uttered thus far against Israel, Judah and all the nations. God's purpose is clearly stated. The prophecies were recorded to be read aloud to the people of Judah, so all could hear the warnings and doom predicted for their city, king's advisers and knew him well, they took the precautions of having the scroll put in a safe place and advised Baruch to take Jeremiah and hide for the prophet. Then they reported the contents of the prophecy to King Jehoiakim.

The king sent Jehudi to fetch the scroll and read it to him in the presence of all his advisers and counselors. Because it was wintertime, the king was seated before a brazier filled with live coals. After Jehudi had read three or four columns of the scroll, the king grabbed the book, cut off the already-read portions and thrust them into the fire. Three of the counselors pleaded with the king not to thus destroy the words of God, but the king ignored them. Piece by piece, as it was read by Jehudi, the king cut off the scroll and burned it, until the entire book was consumed.

In great anger, the king ordered the apprehension of both the prophet Jeremiah and the scribe, Baruch. But the Lord intervened and hid them and

and might turn from their evil ways and be forgiven.

Instead of writing out this book himself, Jeremiah called in Baruch, probably the most gifted scribe then in Judah, and dictated to him the word of God as it had been delivered to him. Since, for some reason, Jeremiah himself could not read the collected prophecies at the Temple, he gave this task to the faithful Baruch.

It was read first to the people gathered from all Judah for a fast day in the Temple, but for the most part, the people paid little heed to the divine word. One man, Michaiah, grandson of the Temple scribe Shaphan (who had discovered and read the book of law now called Deuteronomy to Jehoiakim's father, King Josiah), hurried to the forecourt of the king's palace and repeated what he had heard to the royal princes gathered there.

The princes sent for Baruch, who read the entire prophecy to them. In consternation and fear, they insisted the scroll should be read before the king. Since these princes were also the

they were saved.

God's purpose in hiding the prophet and his scribe is now revealed. God commanded Jeremiah to rewrite the scroll that had been burned, adding to it an account of how the misguided king thought he could do away with the inevitable judgment of God by burning the prophecy, and God's threefold judgment upon the arrogantly blasphemous king himself.

First, no descendant of Jehoiakim's will ever sit upon the throne of David. Second, Jehoiakim's body, instead of having an honorable burial, will be cast out upon a field (of the actual burial of Jehoiakim there is no Scriptural record). Third, upon Jehoiakim and the people there will come punishment from a foreign nation.

The foreign nation was, of course, Babylon, whose armies, under the command of Nebuchadnezzar, were already within the borders of Judah.

Thus began the war between the pen and the penknife. And the pen was destined to triumph.

The good is what works. Apart from the helping or hurting of people, ethical judgments or evaluations are meaningless."

Situation ethics has been criticized, especially by Roman Catholics, who uphold certain absolute moral laws. An American Jesuit, the Rev. Robert Gleason, said: "It is not in Christian tradition to present love as the exclusive motive for moral action."

Fletcher added: "Situation ethics is criticized for saying everything is relative. 'But we say, 'Look boys, this is the 20th century. The scientifically sophisticated world view is relativistic. You are going to be left out in the cold if you think the moral sciences are somehow an exception to this rule and this influence.'"

Fletcher, in turn, criticizes persons he calls legalists—"people who like to wallow or cower in the security of the law."

"They want to maintain absolutes of good and evil, but they are not going to get away with it," he said. "Goodness is what happens to a human act, it is not in the act itself."

Johnson also told reporters he is feeling good, but that the hernia plagues him a bit—just as if he were carrying a weight attached to his side.

His voice was noticeably hoarse.

Johnson announced no plans in advance for this Veterans Day. However, it was known that additional Cabinet officers will be conferring with him at the ranch during his Texas stay.

The President said Thursday he still doesn't know where or when he will undergo surgery to remove a throat polyp and repair an abdominal hernia along the incision from last year's gall bladder-kidney stone operation.

Johnson's surgery last year was performed at the Naval Medical Center in Bethesda, Md., just outside the capital.

The President said Thursday he hopes to enter the hospital in less than a week or 10 days. He indicated he might be operated on as early as Monday. But he emphasized that no decision has been made.

Theologian Says 'Situation Ethics' Is 20th Century Moral Revolution

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Dr. Joseph F. Fletcher, professor of ethics at Cambridge Episcopal Theological School, says he would amend the biblical Ten Commandments to read this way:

"Thou shalt not covet, ordinarily."

"Thou shalt not kill, ordinarily."

"Thou shalt not commit adultery, ordinarily."

"In other words," Fletcher says, "for me there are no rules—none at all."

Fletcher is considered America's leading exponent of "situation ethics," which he says "declares that anything and everything is right or wrong according to the situation—what is wrong in some cases would be

Sore Shoulder Now Added To LBJ's Other Ailments

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson, already troubled with medical problems in the throat and abdomen, has a new source of discomfort—a sore shoulder.

Johnson, who has been getting as many as three rubdowns a day from medical corpsmen attached to the White House, was seen kneading his right shoulder following a news conference Thursday at his ranch home near Johnson City.

The nature of the soreness in the President's shoulder was not known. Presumably it is the kind of ache that occasionally plagues any middle-aged man.

Johnson does not necessarily attribute the soreness, which extends down into the arm, to his industrious shaking of many hundreds of hands during his 17-day Asian tour. He likes to point out that he shakes with both hands—in a sort of arm-over-arm windmill motion.

YOUR MONEY

By CHET MCKENZIE

They say you can't have your cake and eat it, too. And like most adages, this one has a lot of truth in it. You generally can't, for instance, enjoy all the luxuries you want and still have the cushion of savings you need. But there are exceptions. One of the rewards about having a large enough "nest egg" of savings deposited with us is that the high dividends earned annually can make it possible for you to enjoy extra luxuries without touching the savings themselves.

In other words, your annual dividends add up to a lot more than you think as your savings build up. Many savers use those dividends to pay for the "extras" that vacation trip, special Christmas gift, new car down payment, and many other things . . . without having to deplete their savings.

Start saving regularly with us now . . . and you'll be surprised how quickly the savings add up, and how the dividends accumulate, until you too can start to "have your cake and eat it!"

TODAY In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Friday, Veteran's Day, Nov. 11, the 315th day of 1966. There are 50 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On this date in 1918, an armistice was signed and World War I was ended.

On this date:
In 1889, the State of Washington was admitted to the Union. In 1932, Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley dedicated the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington National Cemetery in Washington.

In 1942, the Germans occupied all France.
In 1944, the American Third Army was driving toward the Nazi stronghold of Metz, France.

Ten years ago - Yugoslav President Tito delivered a heated attack against what he called the Stalinist position of the Soviet Union. His remarks touched off a new feud between himself and the Kremlin.

Five years ago - Fire officials said a brush fire in Southern California which started Nov. 6 had destroyed 460 homes and caused some $25 million in damage in the exclusive Belair-Brentwood suburb of Los Angeles in the Santa Monica Mountains.

One year ago - The white minority government of Rhodesia declared its independence from Great Britain. The British called it an act of treason and applied economic sanctions on Rhodesia.

Xavier Gets Bequest Of Nearly $600,000

CINCINNATI (AP) - Xavier University has received a bequest of almost $600,000 from a Cincinnati woman who died last December.

Receipts of the $585,433 legacy from Mrs. Isabella M. Cottingham was announced Thursday.

But Boys Like 'Em Slim, So Their Outlook's Grim

CLEVELAND (AP) - Two University Medical Center scientists, said Thursday that some people are born to be plump, if not obese, and should stay that way.

The opinion was expressed by Dr. C. Wesley Dupertuis and his wife, Helen, who for 30 years have gathered data on the body types of people in relation to fitness and disease.

Dr. Dupertuis is associate professor of clinical anthropology at Western Reserve University's School of Medicine and his wife is assistant professor in the same department.

They said most females are naturally rounded, soft-looking and less muscular than men. Inclined to put on fat more easily, they should keep the weight their bodies are designed to carry, the scientists said.

Commenting on a study over the past five years of nearly 1,000 freshmen women at Western Reserve University, the couple said that a majority of the girls are dieting to attain a
portion to their individual body types.

"We don't agree that slenderness is necessarily good," said Mrs. Dupertuis. "For some, obesity is a natural thing and trying to make themselves slender is a mistake. Reducing makes them nervous, tense, irritable. It changes their whole body chemistry or metabolism."

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) -
Gov. James A. Rhodes, Ohio's new champion vote-getter, heads for a Florida vacation today with an admonition against "dancing on the graves" of Democratic election losers.

Aides said that was the gist of Rhodes' warning to elated Republicans inclined to kick up their heels over keeping all Statehouse offices, gaining full control of the legislature an enlarging their topheavy congressional delegation.

ernor as saying, in effect, before takeoff.

The governor declined to disclose where he and Mrs. Rhodes would stay but previous visits have been in the Fort Lauderdale area. They are making the trip by commercial plane.

Even as congratulations over his record 62 per cent plurality in Tuesday's election poured in, Rhodes reminded associates that the political pendulum swings both ways. Another Republican, John W. Bricker, former U.S. Senator, governor and attorney general, held the previous Ohio high of 60.5 per cent.

Jobs may become more important than ever to Ohioans if a slide in the national economy should develop, the governor cautioned. He made it clear to department heads that the state must be prepared to move ahead, regardless.

Associates described the governor as unchanged by the sweep of his re-election triumph over State Sen. Frazier Reams Jr., Toledo Democrat.

They said Rhodes feels he finally has "sold" the idea generally that the "Wonderful World of Ohio" and his programs come first.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support.
Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

How I had dreaded cleaning the attic! But it was all worth it after I found the picture of Nip and Tuck when they were puppies. I sat down there and then in the cold, dusty room and recalled the day when Bob brought them home to Carol. How she laughed and loved them and flung her arms around both our necks in excited gratitude. How much fun we three had, watching the cunning antics of the canine infants.

Nip is gone now, duly mourned and buried under our apple tree, and Tuck, gray and crotchety, limps if he moves too fast. Carol lives in Cincinnati in a happy home of her own, and I carry roses to the cemetery on the hill.

What a wonderful gift is memory. My days are rich with remembrances of the good life Bob and I had. How glad I am that we shared, not only a home, but also a love for God and His Church so that though now I am lonely, yet
I am not alone.

Journalists Pay Tribute To Varsity Cheerleaders

By WANDA FYFFE AND DENISE JACKSON

This week the Journalism Class is honoring the varsity cheerleaders.

Captain of the "holler girls" is Malinda Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray R. Anderson, 151 Logan St. A senior enrolled in the general course, Malinda has five older brothers, three older sisters and a younger sister, "Beezy".

She is a member of Senior SOS, Senior GAA, and high school choir. As a member of the Church of the Brethren, Malinda is vice president of CBYF, a member of the Southern Ohio Youth District Cabinet, and assistant Sunday School teacher and choir member.

In the future, Malinda hopes to serve where ever she is needed in the Brethren Volunteer Service for two years.

When asked to compare school spirit this year with that of last year she replied, "On the whole I feel that with the new football field and gym, school spirit this year is greater than ever before. I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate the football team, Coach Starr, and his staff for winning the SCOL title."

The other senior cheerleader is Joyce Valentine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Valentine. Joyce resides at 156 W. High St. Her sister Jo Ann, is a registered nurse at D. C. General Hospital in Washington D. C.

As a senior, enrolled in the classical course, Joyce is active in Senior SOS, is vice president of Senior GAA, news reporter for Future Nurses Association, and attends the Lutheran Church.

This is Joyce's second year on the varsity squad and she comments, "Cheerleading has meant more to me than I'll ever be able to express. Being a cheerleader has made me realize the hard work and planning that goes into a pep assembly and many difficult hours of practice before the games. Becoming a cheerleader brought me self-satisfaction. When I graduate this year I'll miss my friends, homework, and getting up early, but most of all I'll miss being able to put on my uniform and cheer. It's a great rewarding experience which I'll never forget."

Junior Connie Bowers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bowers, resides at 921 Circle Drive

Her brothers and sister — Steve, age 20, a junior at OSU; Linda, 18, a freshman at the University of Kentucky; and Tom, who is in Junior High — are all very proud of Connie for the fine job she is doing in her first year on the varsity squad.

Enrolled in the classical course, Connie is a very active girl. She participates in Senior GAA, Senior SOS, Curtain Callers, EMS, concert band girls intramurals in the cast of "The Solid Gold Cadillac," MYF, Stir and Mix 4-H Club, Junior Leaders, treasurer of the cheerleaders, and attends the First Methodist Church.

Connie replied to the question what does cheerleading mean to you, "I believe that cheerleading is merely one method of boosting school spirit. We cheerleaders were not chosen to entertain. Our job is to encourage sports fans to root their team on to victory (or maybe to a championship)! When I see Tiger fans yelling I secretly enjoy a keen sense of satisfaction. I know that I am doing my job well!"

Where Are '66 Grads?

By JOYCE VALENTINE

Tears caused by the sad partings of the graduation class of 1966 have been dried. The students have gone their different ways, some a little confused, some knowing exactly what they want. This is a review of a few to let you know what happened to them.

The following is a list of students and the colleges they attend:

Ohio University — Tim Adams, Roger Grigg, and Regina Parcells.

Miami University — Mary Mader, Jane Mader, Susan Butz and Lynn Rickey.

Wilmington—John Butts, Jimmie Diltz.

Ohio State — Lynn Cook, Suzanne Horst and Judie Moats. V.P.I. — Danny Dick.

Virginia Intermont — Lynn Hughes.

C.B.U. — Bonnie Moffitt.

Not all students are eager or interested in entering college and are now either married, holding jobs or serving their country.

Students holding jobs and where they work: Barry Adams future plans are for Navy Officers School but he is now working; Hodgie Dade — Westinghouse in Columbus; Kathy Edgington — Container Corporation; John Funk — Lincoln Plastics; Melodee Greenlee, Joyce Quince, Jill Robertson, Stewart Skinner, and Sally Whaley — General Electric; Gloria Barr — Second National Bank; Pete Kuhn — married — Joe Moat's Sales; Nick Nance — Nance Fruit and Vegetables; Judy Stonerock — Fitzpatrick's; John Wagner — Noel's King Boy; Linda Young — Motorists Mutual in Columbus.

Those girls who are happily married include: Brenda (Downing) Neff, Sandra (Spiller) Greiner, Karen (Hendrickson) Bost, Deloris (Hughey) Bellamy, Dorothy (Sadler) Lutz, Jean (Cassill) Williams.

Those serving in the armed forces include: Ernie Brown, Jerry Jenkins, Patty May, Larry Smallwood, Charlie Smith, Bob Stout.

is Bev Carney. Bev is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lindy G. Carney. She and her parents reside at 656 Edgewood Drive with one sister, Linda.

When asked what she thought of being a cheerleader, Bev replied, "Being a cheerleader is just fabulous. It gives me a chance to help lead the students in the support of our team."

Bev was also asked what she thought of spirit at CHS and she replied, "I think that the spirit at CHS has greatly improved since the new school was built. Everyone is anxious to see the games and cheer the team on to another victory."

Bev is now enrolled in the college prep course. She plans to attend OU and become a home economist. While Bev is still in school she is a very active member of GAA, Curtain Callers, EMS, and NHS.

Janie Wiggins is our next junior cheerleader. Janie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burl Wiggins. Janie and her parents reside at Route 3, Circleville. Janie has one sister, Diedra Copland.

Janie has been a cheerleader in previous years and she still has a high opinion about cheerleading. "I like cheerleading very much and I think it is one of the greatest activities. It's thrilling to know I'm a part of every game. It's also great to know that I am cheering for the SCOL championship team."

Also, Janie was asked her opinion of the spirit at CHS? "The spirit at CHS is great! The band cheers with us at every game and we have a cheering student section. At the high point of the game enthusiasm is terrific."

Janie is enrolled in the college prep curriculum. She is an active member in GAA, 4-H club, Circleville junior leader, and Methodist church. Janie's future plans include college. She has been thinking seriously of studying to be an anesthetist.

Last but not least is Keitha Wagner. Keitha is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith D. Wagner. She and her parents reside at 226 Walnut St. with one brother, Max Edwin, who attends Junior High School.

"Being a cheerleader gives you added responsibilities. Cheerleaders are guideposts who relay messages from the fans to the teammates in somewhat orderly fashion. It's a privileged to support your team as a cheerleader."

On school spirit, Keitha's point of view is, "School spirit this year was good but sportsmanship from the students and adults was outrageous. Everyone knows that football teams have their ups and downs as do teams in any sport; therefore, courtesy should be shown at all times. Instead of booing, try a cheer, you'll feel better!"

Keitha is an active junior enrolled in the college prep course. She is, also, active in Drama Club, GAA, and an officer in MYF. Her hobbies are water skiing, sketching and traveling. Her future plans include college. She is undecided about her major, having many interesting which include fine arts, nursing or physical education. Keitha also has a great ambition to tour Europe and visit friends there.

Play Practice Continuing

Cast members of the junior class play, "Solid Gold Cadillac," are going through Act I with no script and are preparing Act II in nightly rehearsals being conducted in the auditorium at CHS.

Ron Mead, director, and Dana Bass, student coordinator, are working hard with cast and committees to stage a successful show Nov. 17-18.

Leading lady of the production is Brenda Anderson as Mrs. Laura Partridge. She plays the part of a lady who takes over control of a large corporation with the help of Ed McKeever played by Jack White.

Owners of the corporation are T. John Blessington, played by Rick Compton; Alfred Metcalf, played by Jeff Steele; Warren Gillie, played by Steven McGinis; and Clifford Snell, played by Mike Hulise.

Action of the play takes place in New York City, location of the corporation, and McKeever's office in Washington.

EMS Names New Officers

Officers for the 1966-67 English Merit Society were chosen at the organizational meeting. The following people were elected: Mary Anne Yates, chairman; Melissa Matz, vice chairman; Laura Whaley, secretary. Class representatives are Richard Thomas, senior; Carolyn Leist, junior; and Eric Walters, sophomore. The club is under the very capable leadership of Mrs. Annette Will, who also teaches English IV and College English at CHS.

In order to be accepted in EMS a student must have a 3.5 average the preceding year in English. The English Merit Society publishes an all school magazine in the spring containing original work from every English class.

Seniors have 137 days until graduation.

Question on Voting Age

By ANNE JOYCE

Should the voting age be lowered to 18? This has been a question up for discussion in many government classes.

Many feel that the 18-year-old of today does not have enough experience to take part in voting for the officials in our system of government and should wait until they have been part of the working society, rather than the sheltered school society.

On the other hand, many feel that if at 18 you are old enough to be drafted into the armed forces, you should be able to vote for those who are governing our people in time of conflict. In plain words, if they are old enough to fight they are old enough to vote.

There is no definite answer to this question at this time except what we as individuals think. What do you think — should it be lowered or kept as it is?

Those two attractive, freckle-faced, junior girls walking down the halls of CHS this year are Judy and Jeanne Ryan.

Before moving to Circleville Judy and Jeanne lived in Summit, Tex. Since living in Circleville they have attended Bishop Flaget High School in Chillicothe.

Judy and Jeanne are the twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan, 464 Edwards Road. They have two brothers, Mark and John, and a sister, Marijo.

Both girls are in the classical course of study. Among their interests are reading, horseback riding, skiing and basketball.

Twin Judy likes hipbucker pants, popular music and dances, boys, study hall, chemistry lab, and "Rat Patrol." She dislikes liver, long hair on boys, and Monday mornings.

Jeanne's likes are army shirts, snow, library, slacks, Friday, "I Spy," and wearing John's sweaters. Her dislikes include crew cuts, bell-bottoms on boys, rain, moody people, the color red and getting up in the morning.

Both girls attend St. Joseph's Church and are members of Sigma Nu.

When asked what they thought of Circleville they replied "I really like it." "I think it's great."

After graduation they plan to attend college. Jeanne will major in language, while Judy plans to become a social worker.

Journalists Pay Tribute To Varsity Cheerleaders

By WANDA FYFFE AND DENISE JACKSON

This week the Journalism Class is honoring the varsity cheerleaders.

Captain of the "holler girls" is Malinda Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray R. Anderson, 151 Logan St. A senior enrolled in the general course, Malinda has five older brothers, three older sisters and a younger sister, "Beezy".

She is a member of Senior SOS, Senior GAA, and high school choir. As a member of the Church of the Brethren, Malinda is vice president of CBFF, a member of the Southern Ohio Youth District Cabinet, and assistant Sunday School teacher and choir member.

In the future, Malinda hopes to serve where ever she is needed in the Brethren Volunteer Service for two years.

When asked to compare school spirit this year with that of last year she replied, "On the whole I feel that with the new football field and gym, school spirit this year is greater than ever before. I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate the football team, Coach Starr, and his staff for winning the SCOL title."

The other senior cheerleader is Joyce Valentine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Valentine. Joyce resides at 156 W. High St. Her sister Jo Ann, is a registered nurse at D. C. General Hospital in Washington D. C.

As a senior, enrolled in the classical course, Joyce is active in Senior SOS, is vice president of Senior GAA, news reporter for Future Nurses Association, and attends the Lutheran Church.

She is undecided about future plans.

This is Joyce's second year on the varsity squad and she comments, "Cheerleading has meant more to me than I'll ever be able to express. Being a cheerleader has made me realize the hard work and planning that goes into a pep assembly and many difficult hours of practice before the games. Becoming a cheerleader brought me self-satisfaction. When I graduate this year I'll miss my friends, homework, and getting up early, but most of all I'll miss being able to put on my uniform and cheer. It's a great rewarding experience which I'll never forget."

Junior Connie Bowers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bowers, resides at 921 Circle Drive.

Her brothers and sister — Steve, age 20, a junior at OSU; Linda, 18, a freshman at the University of Kentucky; and Tom, who is in Junior High — are all very proud of Connie for the fine job she is doing in her first year on the varsity squad.

Enrolled in the classical course, Connie is a very active girl. She participates in Senior GAA, Senior SOS, Curtin Callers, EMS, concert band girls intramurals in the cast of "The Solid Gold Cadillac," MYF, Str and Mix 4-H Club, Junior Leaders, treasurer of the cheerleaders, and attends the First Methodist Church.

Connie replied to the question what does cheerleading mean to you, "I believe that cheerleading is merely one method of boosting school spirit. We cheerleaders are not chosen to entertain. Our job is to encourage sports fans to root their team on to victory (or maybe to a championship)! When I see Tiger fans yelling I secretly enjoy a keen sense of satisfaction. I know that I am doing my job well!"

Where Are '66 Grads?

By JOYCE VALENTINE

Tears caused by the sad partings of the graduation class of 1966 have been dried. The students have gone their different ways, some a little confused, some knowing exactly what they want. This is a review of a few to let you know what happened to them.

The following is a list of students and the colleges they attend:

Ohio University — Tim Adams, Roger Grigg, and Regina Parsons.

Miami University — Mary Mader, Jane Mader, Susan Butz and Lynn Rickey.

Wilmington—John Butts, Jimmie Diltz.

Ohio State — Lynn Cook, Suzanne Horst and Judie Moats. V.P.I. — Danny Dick.

Virginia Intermont — Lynn Hughes.

C.B.U. — Bonnie Moffit.

Not all students are eager or interested in entering college and are now either married, holding jobs or serving their country.

Students holding jobs and where they work: Barry Adams future plans are for Navy Officers School but he is now working; Hodgie Dade — Westinghouse in Columbus; Kathy Edgington — Container Corporation; John Funk — Lincoln Plastics; Melodee Greenlee, Joyce Quince, Bill Robertson, Stewart Skinner, and Sally Whaley — General Electric; Gloria Barr — Second National Bank; Pete Kuhn — married — Joe Moat's Sales; Nick Nance — Nance Fruit and Vegetables; Judy Stonerock — Fitzpatrick's; John Wagner — Noel's King Boy; Linda Young — Motorists Mutual in Columbus.

Those girls who are happily married include: Brenda (Downing) Neff, Sandra (Spiller) Greiner, Karen (Hendrickson) Bost, Deloris (Hughey) Bellamy, Dorothy (Sadler) Lutz, Jean (Cassill) Williams.

Those serving in the armed forces include: Ernie Brown, Jerry Jenkins, Patty May, Larry Smallwood, Charlie Smith, Bob Stout.

is Bev Carney. Bev is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lindy G. Carney. She and her parents reside at 656 Edgewood Drive with one sister, Linda.

When asked what she thought of being a cheerleader, Bev replied, "Being a cheerleader is just fabulous. It gives me a chance to help lead the students in the support of our team."

Bev was also asked what she thought of spirit at CHS and she replied, "I think that the spirit at CHS has greatly improved since the new school was built. Everyone is anxious to see the games and cheer the team on to another victory."

Bev is now enrolled in the college prep course. She plans to attend OU and become a home economist. While Bev is still in school she is a very active member of GAA, Curtin Callers, EMS, and NHS.

Janie Wiggins is our next junior cheerleader. Janie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burl Wiggins. Janie and her parents reside at Route 3, Circleville. Janie has one sister, Diedra Copland.

Janie has been a cheerleader in previous years and she still has a high opinion about cheerleading. "I like cheerleading very much and I think it is one of the greatest activities. It's thrilling to know I'm a part of every game. It's also great to know that I am cheering for the SCOL championship team."

Also, Janie was asked her opinion of the spirit at CHS? "The spirit at CHS is great! The band cheers with us at every game and we have a cheering student section. At the high point of the game enthusiasm is terrific."

Janie is enrolled in the college prep curriculum. She is an active member in GAA, 4-H club, Circleville junior leader, and Methodist church. Janie's future plans include college. She has been thinking seriously of studying to be an anesthetist.

Last but not least is Keitha Wagner. Keitha is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith D. Wagner. She and her parents reside at 226 Walnut St. with one brother, Max Edwin, who attends Junior High School.

Keitha is an active mascot of the squad. Although this may seem to be a minor part, she has the "big" potential of the group. A cheerleader to her has meant a lot. "Being a cheerleader gives you added responsibilities. Cheerleaders are guideposts who relay messages from the fans to the teammates in somewhat orderly fashion. It's a privilege to support your team as a cheerleader."

On school spirit, Keitha's point of view is, "School spirit this year was good but sportsmanship from the students and adults was outrageous. Everyone knows that football teams have their ups and downs as do teams in any sport; therefore, courtesy should be shown at all times. Instead of booing, try a cheer, you'll feel better!"

Keitha is an active junior enrolled in the college prep course. She is, also, active in Drama Club, GAA, and an officer in MYF. Her hobbies are water skiing, sketching and traveling. Her future plans include college. She is undecided about her major, having many interesting which include fine arts, nursing or physical education. Keitha also has a great ambition to tour Europe and visit friends there.

Erdelatz, Famed Navy Coach, Dies

BURLINGAME, Calif. (AP)—Eddie Erdelatz, who began an eight-year football coaching regime at the U.S. Naval Academy with a startling victory over favored Army in 1950, died Thursday. He was 52.

Erdelatz, whose "Team Named Desire" upended a powerhouse Army club and snapped a string of straight losses to the arch-rival Cadets, died after a second operation for throat cancer.

He entered Peninsula Hospital Oct. 24 for an abdominal diagnosis. When tests revealed throat cancer, the big man with the soft voice and ready smile told a friend: "This is my toughest fight — pray for me." A first operation was performed a short time later.

While Erdelatz coached at Navy from 1950 through 1958, the Midshilmen won 50 times, lost 26 and tied 8. Two of the victories were in bowl games, but none was as sweet as licking administered to that 1950 Army team which had won all its eight previous starts. Navy that year had a 3-9 record.

Erdelatz' Navy teams had a 6-2-1 record against Army when he resigned in a dispute about the Naval Academy's athletic policies. He later coached the Oakland Raiders for two seasons in the American Football League and was a vice president of California Finance Corp. in nearby San Jose when he died.

Most of his life he lived for football. As a youngster in Berkeley, across San Francisco Bay, he painted strips on his sweater to look like a player and glued acorns on his high-topped shoes, to simulate cleats.

In 1935, he was an All-American end at St. Mary's College and he did that despite a gridiron injury that almost cost him a leg. Punctured by a cleat, his leg became infected so badly that physicians pondered whether it would have to be removed.

"I'd rather be dead than miss the next season of football," he declared, and he made it.

Before going to Navy, he helped coach teams for St. Mary's, University of San Francisco and the San Francisco 49ers. For the 49ers he devised a "jitterbug" defense that confused many foes.

During his playing career, he refused to stop despite a shoulder separation and a knee twist. After the season, he met his wife in a hospital. A nurse, she diagrammed the X's and O's of football plays on his leg cast.

It's Browns Versus Eagles At Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Philadelphia Eagles will bring two notable Browns of their own to town Sunday when they invade the home of the Cleveland Browns.

Best known of the colorful duo is Tim Brown, who made history by running back two kickoffs all the way against Dallas last Sunday to help upset the Cowboys.

That makes Tim a pretty big man among the Eagles, but he doesn't have much physical stature beside 6-foot-5 Bob Brown, a former Cleveland High School (East Tech) athlete who is out to prove that he is the No. 1 offensive tackle in the National Football League.

Bob Brown will be the personal challenge of Cleveland's Paul Wiggin.

Cahill Rehired
WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Coach Tom Cahill, whose Army football team this year has lost only to powerful Notre Dame and Tennessee, was given a new contract Thursday by the U.S. Military Academy.

The San Francisco Giants had poor success with the Philadelphia Phillies during the baseball season. The Phillies beat them 10 times in 18 games, the best record any team had against the Giants in 1966.

The bettors got out their mud books today to see if they might come up with a surprise winner in the $150,000 Washington D. C. International at Laurel and in Saturday's $311,125 Garden State Stakes at Garden State Park.

Rain Thursday indicated that the going would be soft over the grass course at Laurel today. An off track on the regular course also was in prospect for the Garden State.

Despite the rain Charles Engelhard's Assagai, of the United States, was expected to remain the favorite in the International. The 3-year-old colt won both the United Nations Handicap at Atlantic City and the Man O' War at Aqueduct over soft grass courses. He will be opposed by Tom Rolfe, also of the U.S. and eight foreign horses, including Russia's Aniline and Canada's George Royal.

The elements may turn the Garden State Stakes into a wide-open affair, however. Successor, the early choice, does not show any outstanding mud mark and an outsider in the field of 12 two-year-olds may upset the dope.

Successor will be opposed by In Reality, who beat him in the Pimlico Futurity, Jack Of All Trades, Dawn Glory, Gentleman James, Wilbur Clark, Alto Ribot, Jovial Boy High Tribute Yorkville, Proviso and Bold Hour. The winner of the 11-15 miles will get $188,475.

These two races top the holiday racing weekend.

14 Buckeye Colleges Bow Out Saturday

By HAL PARIS
Associated Press Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The curtain descends on another football campaign for 14 Ohio college Saturday—the last Big weekend of the 1966 season.

Woody Hayes, with 100 victories in the bank in 16 years at Ohio State, takes his Buckeyes to Iowa City for Big Ten skirmish with last-place Iowa.

About the only thing that makes this game interesting is past duels between Hayes and Hawkeye Athletic Director Forest Evashevski, both on and off the field.

Ohio is a 12-point favorite to even its record at 4-4 setting the stage for its Nov. 19 clash against ancient rival Michigan. Hayes needs triumphs over both the Hawks and Wolverines to nail down his 15th winning season in 16 years.

The biggest game of the day in the Buckeye State pits surging Dayton against Miami at Oxford. The Flyers and the Mid-American Conference co-champion Redskins both sport 7-1 marks.

Ohio University, trying to snap a three-game losing streak plays at Bowling Green in a contest that will decide third place in the Mid-Am standings.

Coach Leo Strang takes his Kent State club to Huntington, W. Va., where Marshall will be out to end a seven-game losing string.

Cincinnati, playing at home, comes to grips with Louisville in a Missouri Valley contest; Toledo entertains the Quantico Marines under the lights and Xavier collides with Western Michigan, which owns a piece of the MAC title, in another night game in the Queen City.

Baldwin Wallace visits Youngstown in a game expected to produce several touchdowns and Muskingum risks its 15-game winning streak against Hofstra at New York.

The others:
Otterbein at Capital; Ohio Wesleyan at Mount Union; Kenyon at Denison; Wooster at Oberlin; Heidelberg at Akron; Ashland at Marietta; Bluffton at Ohio Northern; Anderson at Defiance; Cast at Western Reserve; Hiram at Grove City; Wittenberg at Kalamazoo and Central State at Fairmont (W. Va.) State.

Parnelli Jones Trims Time in Stardust Preview

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Parnelli Jones, who unofficially trimmed seven-tenths of a second off the lap record at the Stardust International Speed way in a practice lap, says he expects times to drop even further during today's qualifying.

Jones made the 3-mile loop in 1:37.3 in a Lola T-70. The official track record of 1:38.0 was set last year by Jim Hall driving a Chaparral.

Jones, one of the most versatile drivers in auto racing today, says he'll have to beat seven drivers Sunday to win the $30,000 Stardust Grand Prix, final race in this year's Canadian-American Cup championship series.

He listed them as Hall and Phil Hill in the winged Chaparrals, Dan Gurney of Santa Ana, Calif., and four Commonwealth drivers, John Surtees, Jackie Stewart, Bruce McLaren and Chris Amon.

Jones won the 1963 Indianapolis 500.

Alamo Women's Golf Tournament Under Way

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The $12,500 Alamo Women's Open Golf Tournament starts today with the field aiming at Kathy Whitworth and Mickey Wright, who between them have won 15 tournaments.

Miss Whitworth, the year's leading money winner, and Miss Wright agreed that par figures should win over the 6,600-yard Pecan Valley course for the 54 holes of the tournament. Par is 72.

Bowling Champ Dies

CLEVELAND (AP) — Steve Nagy, twice Bowler of the Year and a professional Bowling all-star champion, died Thursday at the age of 53.

Most assists in a National Basketball Association season were registered by Oscar Robertson when he made 899 during the 1961-62 campaign.

Knudson Regains His Lead In Canada Cup Tournament

TOKYO (AP) — George Knudson of Canada, a handsome golfing ambassador who shot a sensational, record-breaking 64 Thursday, slipped behind Arnold Palmer of the United States in the second round of the Canada Cup today and then surged back into the lead again with birdies on the 16th and 17th holes.

Knudson's 36-32 gave him 68 for the day and a 36-hole total of 132. Palmer shot 34-33—67 which with his 66 of Thursday made his score 133. Par for the 6,962-yard hilly course is 72.

Tied for third in individual honors were Lu Liang-huan of Nationalist China with 67-68—135 and Hideyo Sugimoto of Japan, the local club pro, who shot 36-33—69 to go with his 66 of Thursday.

The United States took over the team lead from Canada by virtue of Jack Nicklaus' 35-33—68 which gave him 137.

The American team total was 270, a sensational 15 under par, National China was second with 273, followed by Australia 276, South Africa 276, Canada 278, Japan 281, Belgium 282, and Argentina 284.

Palmer, Knudson, and Nagle all were tied after 27 holes with scores of 100. Palmer forged ahead with 33 on the back nine, with three birdies and a bogey, but Knudson, playing behind him, birdied the par 4 and 518th and 17th and then saved the day on the 18th by sinking a ricky, twisting uphill put of 12 feet.

As soon as Palmer and Nicklaus finished play, an Air Force helicopter alighted on the Ymuri Country Club driving range and took the two American aces to the Tachikawa Air Force Base Hospital where they visited with wounded from the Viet Nam battle front.

Tigers Rated Top SCO Defense Unit

Final tabulation of South Central Ohio League football statistics, compiled by SCO statistician Paul Maple shows Circleville leading in defense and second in offense.

The rugged Tiger defenders held opponents to 745 yards and 31 points during the enroute to a 5-0 loop mark and the championship.

Wilmington led in total offense scoring 134 points while gaining 1,531 yards. The Hurricane was second in the league standings.

The WHS defense gave up 892 yards and allowed 51 points, ranking third in the loop.

WASHINGTON C. H. was second in defense, holding league foes to 790 yards and 43 points. The Blue Lions were third in offense, scoring 103 points and gaining 1,212 yards.

Washington C. H. set some kind of a record when nine players shared in the scoring during a 45-6 defeat pinned on Hillsboro.

Steve Dade of Circleville led all individuals in the league, scoring 62 points and gaining 612 yards. His nearest threat to the scoring and groundgaining laurels was Skip Davis of Wilmington who had 42 points and 381 yards. Gary Scott of Wilmington also scored 42 points.

John Petty was the league's leading passer, completing 37 of 65 for 514 yards. Ed die Summers of Miami Trace was second with 34 completions in 68 throws for 453 yards.

Bob Tootle connected on 20 of 52 tries for 295 yards. Jim Kensing of Greenfield hit 25 of 67.

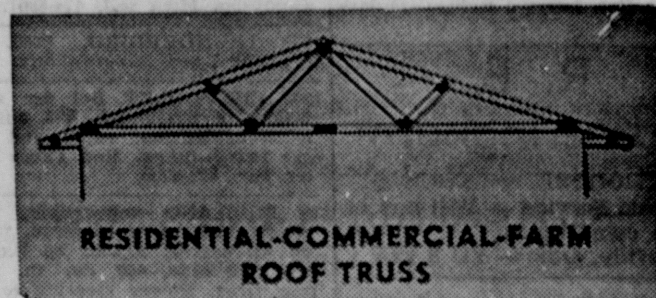

Petty, Summers and Tootle are all juniors and will be around another year to harass league defenders.

A TOTAL of 41 players broke into the league scoring column. This may be some kind of a record. And the points came in every way possible, including two field goals and two safeties.

Both safeties were accomplished by Circleville. Bill Gates was credited with one. The other was brought about by Tom Fletcher and Doug Smith the way The Circleville Herald saw it. Maple's statistics list Lynn Heath and Rod Sines with the safety.

It would probably be safer to give the entire Tiger defensive alignment credit for both the two - pointers.

Erdelatz, Famed Navy Coach, Dies

BURLINGAME, Calif. (AP)—Eddie Erdelatz, who began an eight-year football coaching regime at the U.S. Naval Academy with a startling victory over favored Army in 1950, died Thursday. He was 52.

Erdelatz, whose "Tea and Named Desire" upended a powerhouse Army club and snapped a string of straight losses to the arch-rival Cadets, died after a second operation for throat cancer.

He entered Peninsula Hospital Oct. 24 for an abdominal diagnosis. When tests revealed throat cancer, the big man with

Hurricanes Meet Pitt Friday Night

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Miami, a giant killer that operates on a thin margin, tonight faces Pitt, which last week fought Notre Dame the nation's top-ranked college football team, on even terms for one half.

In their last five games, the Hurricanes have scored just five touchdowns but have managed to knock off previously unbeaten Southern California and Georgia.

Pitt held Notre Dame to a 7-0 lead in the first half last week before the Irish came on with a rush and won 40-0.

Miami's problem, needless to say, is scoring. In the five previous games, it has been inside its opponent's 20-yard line 12 times without scoring and inside the 10 six times with nothing to show.

The rest of the major colleges are active Saturday and there is no bigger game around than the Arkansas-Southern Methodist contest that will go a long way toward deciding the Southwest Conference champion. Arkansas, No. 6 in the Associated Press poll, is 4-1 in the conference, while SMU is unbeaten in four starts.

Top-rated Notre Dame and Michigan State should have an easy time of it the week before they square off in East Lansing, Mich., in a game for the national championship.

The No. 1 Irish meet Duke. The No. 2 Spartans, play Indiana. Also a prohibitive favorite to improve on its undefeated record is third-ranked Alabama, which meets South Carolina.

Nebraska, No. 4, is a two-touchdown pick over Big Eight Conference foe Oklahoma State. Georgia Tech, No. 5, bids for a bowl bid when it goes up against Penn State. Southern California, No. 7, has a week off.

Eighth-ranked UCLA battles to keep its Rose Bowl hopes alive when it faces Stanford. Georgia, No. 9, hopeful of some postseason action, meets Auburn. Tennessee, No. 10, meets Mississippi.

Other top games match Illinois and Wisconsin, Ohio State and Iowa, Michigan and Northwestern, Minnesota and Purdue, Yale and Princeton, Harva and Brown, Cornell and Dartmouth, Columbia and Penn. California and Army, Florida and Tulane, Kentucky and Houston, Maryland and Clemson, North Carolina and Air Force.

Also, Oregon State and Washington, Syracuse and Florida State, Texas Christian and Texas, Vanderbilt and Navy, Arizona and Washington State, Kentucky and Houston, LSU and Mississippi State, Oregon State and Washington, Rice and Texas A&M, Texas Tech and Baylor and Utah and Brigham Young.

the soft voice and ready smile told a friend: "This is my toughest fight — pray for me." A first operation was performed a short time later.

While Erdelatz coached at Navy from 1950 through 1958, the Midshipmen won 50 times, lost 26 and tied 8. Two of the victories were in bowl games, but none was as sweet as licking administered to that 1950 Army team which had won all its eight previous starts. Navy that year had a 3-9 record.

Erdelatz' Navy teams had a 6-2-1 record against Army when he resigned in a dispute about the Naval Academy's athletic policies. He later coached the Oakland Raiders for two seasons in the American Football League and was a vice president of California Finance Corp. in nearby San Jose when he died.

Most of his life he lived for football. As a youngster in Berkeley, across San Francisco Bay, he painted strips on his sweater to look like a player and glued acorns on his high-topped shoes, to simulate cleats.

In 1935, he was an All-American end at St. Mary's College and he did that despite a gridiron injury that almost cost him a leg. Punctured by a cleat, his leg became infected so badly that physicians pondered whether it would have to be removed.

"I'd rather be dead than miss the next season of football," he declared, and he made it.

Before going to Navy, he helped coach teams for St. Mary's, University of San Francisco and the San Francisco 49ers. For the 49ers he devised a "jitterbug" defense that confused many foes.

During his playing career, he refused to stop despite a shoulder separation and a knee twist. After the season, he met his wife in a hospital. A nurse, she diagnosed the X's and O's of football plays on his leg cast.

It's Browns Versus Eagles At Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Philadelphia Eagles will bring two notable Browns of their own to town Sunday when they invade the home of the Cleveland Browns.

Best known of the colorful duo is Tim Brown, who made history by running back two kickoffs all the way against Dallas last Sunday to help upset the Cowboys.

That makes Tim a pretty big man among the Eagles, but he doesn't have much physical stature beside 6-foot-5 Bob Brown, a former Cleveland High School (East Tech) athlete who is out to prove that he is the No. 1 offensive tackle in the National Football League.

Bob Brown will be the personal challenge of Cleveland's Paul Wiggins.

Cahill Rehired

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Coach Tom Cahill, whose Army football team this year has lost only to powerful Notre Dame and Tennessee, was given a new contract Thursday by the U.S. Military Academy.

The San Francisco Giants had poor success with the Philadelphia Phillies during the baseball season. The Phillies beat them 10 times in 18 games, the best record any team had against the Giants in 1966.

More Upsets Due on Pro Gridirons

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Form took a beating last week when Green Bay, Dallas, Cleveland and Boston fell in a wave of upsets that shook up the pro stand- ings. More of the same may be coming up Sunday.

Here are this writer's picks:
NFL
Pittsburgh 17, St. Louis 14—Cards lost Charley Johnson and Bob DeMarco for the season. Steelers' tough pass rush forced Frank Ryan to throw five interceptions last week in victory over Browns. They'll be firing

Views on TV-Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — With excellent timing and delightful imagination, ABC's "Bewitched" Thursday night came up with a thoroughly comprehensible explanation of last year's big blackout.

Aunt Clara, whose powers of sorcery are not as dependable as they were when she was younger, accidentally put out the lights of the entire Eastern Seaboard when all she was trying to do was move a grand piano by means of witchcraft.

That the program came almost on the anniversary of the blackout was, of course, no coincidence, and it fitted in nicely since a lot of people have been recalling where they were and what they did the night when all the lights went out.

"Bewitched" was not the only show that was busily taking some liberties with history Thursday night. CBS' "Jericho" used the daring removal of Mussolini from a mountain top by German troops, engineered late in World War II by German Col. Otto Skorzeny as the base of a fictitious, flamboyant adventure for the show's intrepid secret agents.

The program even had a character, "Major Otto Von Zeey," who seemed almost as smart as the heroes — except he was bad, of course.

The rescue of Mussolini by the Germans, however, was mostly a point of reference and at most a subplot. The three super- agents of the story were busy trying to get the German plans for the Italian invasion.

And the blackout was just one ingredient in the "Bewitched" episode. As it developed, baby-sitting, Aunt Clara's romance and the sale of a million-dollar advertising campaign were the more important ingredients.

In spite of all the preseason announcements about meaningful, significant drama that was going to be the spice of the current television season, two months have passed, and so far we have not seen any of it.

Tonight, however, there will be "Barefoot in Athens," an adaptation of Maxwell Anderson's play about Socrates on NBC, first of the season's batch of "Hall of Fame" shows.

against Terry Nofsinger. It will be up to Ron Smith to keep the ball out of Larry Wilson's hands if Steelers are going to score second straight major upset.

Baltimore 31, Atlanta 14—Colts on hot streak with John Unitas throwing 10 touchdown passes in last four triumphs. Falcons must win sometime but not this week. Give Unitas enough time and he can name the score.

Dallas 24, Washington 17—Cowboys top league in offense and defense, but Timmy Brown and sloppy work of kick teams cost them a game against Philadelphia. Don Meredith will get the big rush from Redskins' defenders, but Cowboys have too many weapons for pass-happy Washington.

Cleveland 28, Philadelphia 14—Timmy Brown can't run back every kickoff for a touchdown, and the Browns can't be as feeble as they looked against Steelers. The loss of center John Morrow may hurt Cleveland blocking, but they haven't lost to Philadelphia since 1962.

San Francisco 21, Chicago 17—John Brodie moving the club and 49ers still have a shot to take it all in the West despite bad start. Bears' passing sad but Gale Sayers is hot. Remember, Sayers scored six touchdowns against 49ers last Dec. 12.

Minnesota 27, Detroit 14—Vik-

New York 16, Los Angeles 13—Purely a hunch. Giants are battered with Earl Morrall out and Gary Wood bruised. Rams have lost four in a row and offense has been sputtering. Pete Gogolak vs. Bruce Gossett. Green Bay has the bye.

AFL
Buffalo 24, New York 21—A must game for Jets after that 33-23 beating by Bills at Shea Stadium two weeks ago. Buffalo must win or tie to hold Eastern lead.

Boston 24, Houston 20—Pa-

tricts were shocked by Denver last week, but Oilers have lost three straight and six of seven. Pats need Jim Nance in top form to combat Oilers' all-out air attack.

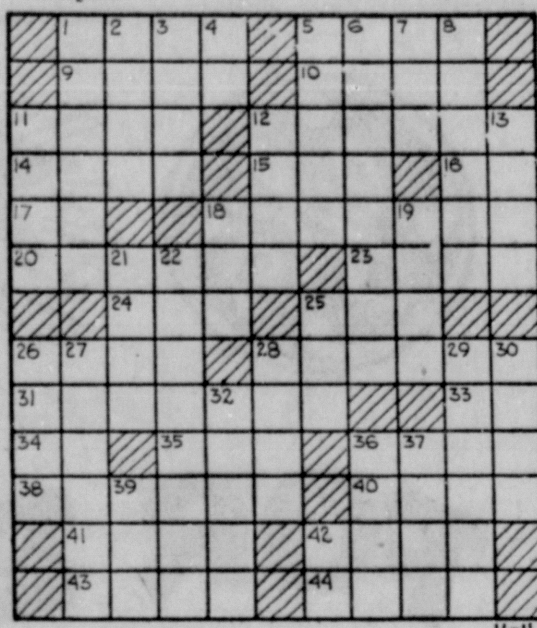

Kansas City 28, Miami 10—Chiefs got past their big one last week by beating San Diego, can't afford to take Dolphins cheaply. Kansas City blanked Miami 33-0 in preseason game.

Oakland 21, San Diego 17—Loss of Lance Alworth brings Chargers back to the pack. San Diego beat Oakland 29-20 in September but has tailed off in recent weeks. Raiders have won four out of their last five and still have outside chance in West.

More Upsets Due on Pro Gridirons

By JACK HAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Form took a beating last week when Green Bay, Dallas, Cleveland and Boston fell in a wave of upsets that shook up the pro stand ings. More of the same may be coming up Sunday.

Here are this writer's picks:
NFL
Pittsburgh 17, St. Louis 14—Cards lost Charley Johnson and Bob DeMarco for the season. Steelers' tough pass rush forced Frank Ryan to throw five interceptions last week in victory over Browns. They'll be firing

Views on TV - Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — With excellent timing and delightful imagination, ABC's "Be-witched" Thursday night came up with a thoroughly comprehensible explanation of last year's big blackout.

Aunt Clara, whose powers of sorcery are not as dependable as they were when she was younger, accidentally put out the lights of the entire Eastern Seaboard when all she was trying to do was move a grand piano by means of witchcraft.

That the program came almost on the anniversary of the blackout was, of course, no coincidence, and it fitted in nicely since a lot of people have been recalling where they were and what they did the night when all the lights went out.

"Bewitched" was not the only show that was busily taking some liberties with history Thursday night. CBS' "Jericho" used the daring removal of Mussolini from a mountain top by German troops, engineered late in World War II by German Col. Otto Skorzeny as the base of a fictitious, flamboyant adventure for the show's intrepid secret agents.

The program even had a character, "Major Otto Von Zeey," who seemed almost as smart as the heroes — except he was bad, of course.

The rescue of Mussolini by the Germans, however, was mostly a point of reference and at most a subplot. The three super-agents of the story were busy trying to get the German plans for the Italian invasion.

And the blackout was just one ingredient in the "Bewitched" episode. As it developed, baby-sitting, Aunt Clara's romance and the sale of a million-dollar advertising campaign were the more important ingredients.

In spite of all the preseason announcements about meaningful, significant drama that was going to be the spice of the current television season, two months have passed, and so far we have not seen any of it.

Tonight, however, there will be "Barefoot in Athens," an adaptation of Maxwell Anderson's play about Socrates on NBC, first of the season's batch of "Hall of Fame" shows.

against Terry Nofsinger. It will be up to Ron Smith to keep the ball out of Larry Wilson's hands if Steelers are going to score second straight major upset.

Baltimore 31, Atlanta 14—Colts on hot streak with John Unitas throwing 10 touchdowns passes in last four triumphs. Falcons must win sometime but not this week. Give Unitas enough time and he can name the score.

Dallas 24, Washington 17—Cowboys top league in offense and defense, but Timmy Brown and sloppy work of kick teams cost them a game against Philadelphia. Don Meredith will get the big rush from Redskins' defenders, but Cowboys have too many weapons for pass-happy Washington.

Cleveland 28, Philadelphia 14—Timmy Brown can't run back every kickoff for a touchdown, and the Browns can't be as feeble as they looked against Steelers. The loss of center John Morrow may hurt Cleveland blocking, but they haven't lost to Philadelphia since 1962.

San Francisco 21, Chicago 17—John Brodie moving the club and 49ers still have a shot to take it all in the West despite bad start. Bears' passing sad but Gale Sayers is hot. Remember, Sayers scored six touchdowns against 49ers last Dec. 12.

Minnesota 27, Detroit 14—Vikings sky high after victory over Packers, their third in the last four games. Francis Tarkenton never better, finding good target in Red Phillips.

New York 16, Los Angeles 13—Purely a hunch. Giants are battered with Earl Morrall out and Gary Wood bruised. Rams have lost four in a row and offense has been sputtering. Pete Gogolak vs. Bruce Gossett. Green Bay has the bye.

AFL
Buffalo 24, New York 21—A must game for Jets after that 33-23 beating by Bills at Shea Stadium two weeks ago. Buffalo must win or tie to hold Eastern lead.

Boston 24, Houston 20—Patriots were shocked by Denver last week, but Oilers have lost three straight and six of seven. Pats need Jim Nance in top form to combat Oilers' all-out air attack.

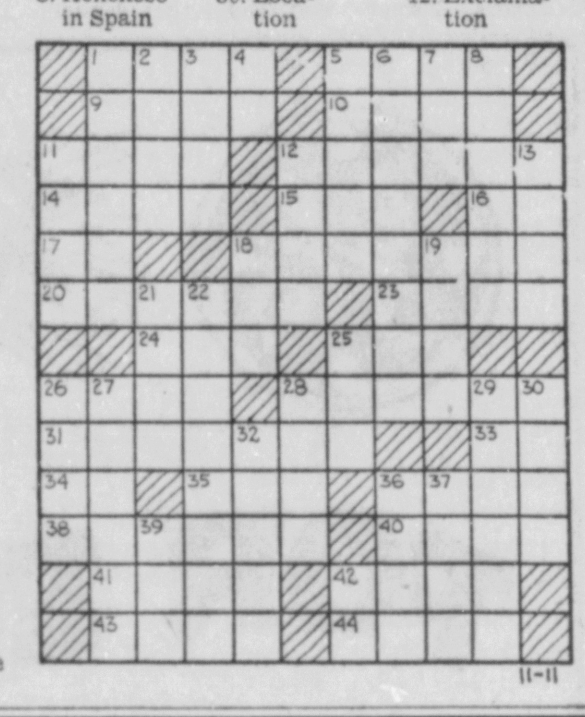

Kansas City 28, Miami 10—Chiefs got past their big one last week by beating San Diego, can't afford to take Dolphins cheaply. Kansas City blanked Miami 33-0 in preseason game.

Oakland 21, San Diego 17—Loss of Lance Alworth brings Chargers back to the pack. San Diego beat Oakland 29-20 in September but has tailed off in recent weeks. Raiders have won four out of their last five and still have outside chance in West.

Development Unit Plans Study Meet On Rural Zoning

A special session designed to study problems connected with rural zoning has been scheduled for 8 p. m. Tuesday at the Community House in Atlanta.

The meeting has been arranged by the Pickaway County Rural Development Corporation. Special emphasis will be placed on rural zoning as it pertains to Deer Creek, Monroe, Perry, Derby, Muhlenberg, Jackson and Wayne Townships.

George C. McGhee, Route 2 Williamsport, secretary for the Pickaway County Development Corporation, said zoning commissioners from Circleville, Walnut, Scioto and Harrison Townships will be present as instructing guests.

Zoning regulations already in effect in Circleville, Walnut, Scioto and Harrison Townships, McGhee said this will enable the commissioners from each to base their comments on actual experience.

Charles Davis, Route 4.

Harold Neff, Route 3.

ACCORDING to the secretary, all citizens interested in preserving the scenic beauty and enhancing property values in the community are urged to attend the session.

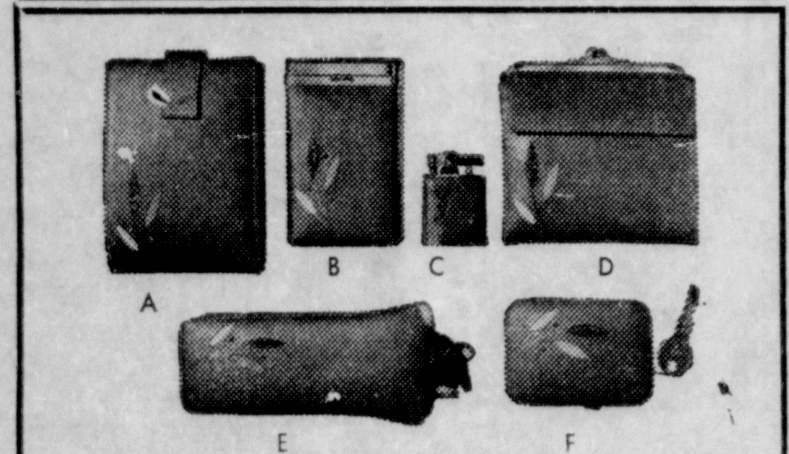

Available statistics show that the farm population, which now represents six per cent of the nation's people, may be only three per cent in another 10 years. Rural development spokesmen point out that city residents who thirst for open space will spill out onto the land.

As McGhee puts it, carefully zoned communities will be able to handle the anticipated flow without spoiling the countryside. Realize better financial results and still permit farming.

He notes that unzoned districts face the danger of rural slums up and down their roads. "It is urgent that we act now," the secretary declared.

In urging interested persons to attend the session, McGhee requested they come equipped with questions which the guest instructors will attempt to answer.

Accelerator Blamed in Auto Mishap

Mrs. Edith Carter, 38, of 227 1/2 N. Scioto St., was admitted to Berger Hospital Thursday evening after her automobile veered out of control at Canal and Ohio Sts.

Mrs. Carter told police the accelerator of her auto stuck as she drove from Maplewood Ave.

The car went out of control, headed down the railroad tracks, turned over, rolled through a fence owned by Container Corporation of America and crashed into a coal pile.

The auto was demolished, officers said.

Mrs. Carter suffered injuries to both legs, head and possible internal injuries.

Her husband, William, who was a passenger, was treated for head injuries and shock and released.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy is launching a fire safety and research campaign in the wake of two recent aircraft carrier blazes which killed 52 men and injured 30.

Pentagon officers say they still aren't sure just what happened aboard the Oiskany and the Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"We're looking at all the possible ways we can think of that would give us better systems to reduce the scope of fires when they start," said one officer.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ambassador Robinson McVaine, who went to Guinea only several weeks ago, is returning for consultation. Relations between the two countries have become strained.

McVaine was put under house arrest for one day as an outgrowth of a squabble between Guinea and Ghana. Guinea held the United States responsible for Ghana's detention of a Guinean delegation which included the foreign minister. Ghana said it was retaliating for Guinean detention of Ghanaians.

Guinea has ordered 72 U.S. Peace Corps workers out of the country and has barred Pan American Airways from landing.
